1                   CHAIRMAN SOULES: Good morning.
2                   Are we ready to come to order? Why don't we 3                   come to order and we'll get right to our 4                   business. We appreciate everybody being 5                   here. We welcome, of course, Judge Clinton in 6                   particular, who is our member from the Court
7                   of Criminal Appeals, and I believe Justice 8                   Hecht will be here shortly to join us also.
9                   There will be an attendance list I'll send 10                  around for sign-ups in a few minutes.

11                  The Court has sent back to us the Jury
12                  Charge Rules and sort of a second installment 13                  of the Appellate Rules. You have an agenda 14                  that's dated April the 29th, and I hope you've 15                  brought all your materials. I never know 16                  whether we're going to get involved in some 17                  particular thing that's going to take a lot of 18                  time or whether -- in some of these meetings 19                  we've had periods where we've gone pretty 20                  quickly through a lot of information, so it's 21                  important to bring everything that you've 22                  received to all of the subsequent meetings so 23                  that we can, if we sort of get a rush of work, 24                  get through as much as we can.

25                  Paula, Lee, I know, has been in touch

1 with the Court on the two Jury Charge Rules.
2 Would it make sense for him, Lee Parsley, to 3 state what he believes the Court did in terms
4 of changes from what we sent there, or do you
5 want to do that? It's up to you.

6 MS. SWEENEY: It would make 7 sense to me, I'm reading them for the first 8 time, having received it yesterday right in 9 the middle of the day --

10 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Okay.

11 MS. SWEENEY: I'm not -- so far 12 I'm just parsing through them to see what the 13 changes have been, because we don't have 14 red-lines.

15 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Okay. Well,
16 we did not get red-lines and did not in our 17 office prepare them for you.

18 Lee, why don't you tell us then. Give us 19 your analysis of the changes from what we sent 20 to the Court sometime back to what they've 21 returned here.

22 MR. PARSLEY: Rules 226 and 236
23 are essentially parallel rules that have to do 24 with the oath to the jury panel. As you will 25 recall, the current rule discusses giving the

1 jury panel an oath and does not provide in any 2 way for jurors who are unable to take an oath
3 because of their conscience or for some reason 4 will not take an oath. 226 and 236 have now 5 added a paragraph (b) that provides for an 6 affirmation in lieu of the oath, which I think 7 and the Court was of the opinion adopts really 8 what is the current law; that if a person 9 cannot because of their conscience take an 10 oath, they still should be able to serve on a 11 jury panel and do something in lieu of the 12 oath. So that's in 226 and 236(b), and they 13 are essentially parallel provisions.

14 Rule 226a, there were some very technical 15 changes in a few parts of 226a but nothing of 16 substance. The Committee voted to substitute 17 "judge" for "court" throughout the rules.
18 The Supreme Court I think thought that the 19 reference to "court" was not causing any 20 particular problem and liked it stylistically, 21 and so these rules reflect the decision by the 22 Supreme Court to go back to using the term 23 "court" instead of "judge" in most 24 instances. I don't think that is of any 25 substance particularly, but that was the 1 decision of the Court that's reflected here.

2 The item that probably deserves the most 3 attention by the Committee is in Rule 278 on 4 Page 8 of what you have regarding preservation 5 of appellate complaints.

6 Paragraph (a) of that rule provides that 7 "a party shall submit to the court in writing 8 the questions, definitions and instructions 9 requested to be included in the charge on any 10 contention that party was required to plead.
11 The request must be sufficient to provide the 12 court reasonable guidance in fashioning the 13 charge."

14 And here is the change that's of the most 15 importance: "Failure to comply with this 16 paragraph shall not preclude the party from 17 assigning error in the charge if an objection
18 is made pursuant to paragraph (b)."

19 Therefore, I believe that reflects that 20 the Court has chosen to go to a practice
21 requiring an objection only, although a
22 request is -- you are asked to prepare a 23 request, but you preserve error through an 24 objection only.

25 The Notes and Comments on Page 9 provides

1 that paragraph (a), failure to comply with 2 this rule shall not preclude the party from 3 assigning error in the charge if an objection
4 is made pursuant to paragraph (b), but that 5 the court may sanction a party who fails to 6 comply with the rule.

7 So you can preserve error by objection 8 only, but the court can, if you don't provide 9 them with a written request, the court can 10 impose some sort of appropriate sanction 11 according to the --

12 MR. LATTING: Do what?

13 MR. ORSINGER: Submit your 14 proposed charge, right?

15 MR. PARSLEY: I don't -- the 16 comment doesn't say, and I don't think the 17 Court wants to say what sanction is 18 appropriate. I think the comment just is to 19 give some guidance that they're serious about 20 the requests, but preservation of error is 21 only through an objection.

22 And I think that in sum is the major 23 changes that you all might want to consider.

24 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Okay. My 25 understanding of what the Court has done here

1 is they've considered the rules textually that 2 we've sent up there and found not any real 3 objection to the text other than change
4 "judge" to "court." The affirmation probably 5 is not of any real consequence to this 6 Committee.

7 Nobody has got an objection to that, do
8 they? If they do, hold your hand up. There 9 is no objection, so the affirmation in lieu of 10 oath is not objectionable to this Committee.

11 And then more importantly, though, the 12 Court received from this Committee our 13 recommendation for a policy relative to 14 preservation of error, and the Court
15 disagreed. And they have sent back to us what 16 they are going to use as a policy for 17 preservation of error, so it's not for us to 18 redebate that. They've looked at it and 19 changed to an object -- well, maybe to an 20 object-only policy. I think there's some 21 question about that, which I would like to 22 raise, but our job now is to advise the Court 23 whether we feel that the policy that they have 24 committed themselves to is articulated in a
25 workable way in the language of this rule.

1 That's our charge.

2 The thing that I alluded to that I say
3 may be object-only, if you look at the last 4 sentence of (a), "failure to comply with this 5 paragraph shall not preclude a party from 6 assigning error in the charge if an objection
7 is made pursuant to paragraph (b)," that may 8 suggest that if you do comply with (a), you 9 don't comply with (b), you still may be able 10 to assign error because you complied with (a), 11 although the first sentence in (b) is 12 inconsistent with what I just said because it 13 says, "A party may not complain of any error 14 in the charge unless that party objects," so 15 that's the only thing I see where there may be 16 some possible inconsistency, and maybe it's 17 not.

18 Paula, why don't you speak first since 19 you're the chair of the subcommittee, and then 20 I'll take others.

21 MS. SWEENEY: Mr. Chairman,
22 before I chaired the subcommittee I sat on the 23 task force, which served for a couple of years 24 and met a number of times and spent hundreds 25 of hours composing this rule. The

1 subcommittee then followed up, and without 2 redeciding any policy issues here, but just so 3 that the body will remember, the decision of 4 all of those folks and of this Committee was 5 that object-only permitted parties to lay 6 behind the log, not submit a correct charge on 7 their own issues, and then at the last minute
8 object; thereby, quote, unquote, preserving
9 appellate error; thereby sandbagging the trial
10 court; thereby sandbagging opposing counsel; 11 thereby ensuring appeals; thereby not giving 12 the trial court guidance as to what a proper 13 submission of the issues on which that party 14 has a burden ought to be. And the very 15 considered decision and in fact the whole 16 thrust of what the task force and the 17 subcommittee and the Committee decided was to 18 the contrary.

19 Reading this rule as it is -- and I would 20 also say that I don't think anybody here
21 appears to have had the opportunity to read 22 it, much less compare it to the draft, much
23 less do any analysis at this time. I know I 24 haven't, since I didn't get it until 25 yesterday, and I don't think anybody else did

1 either that I know of.

2 But what this rule does is provides that 3 a party has a duty to submit questions on 4 their issues, but if they don't, then all they 5 have to do is object. The only recourse that 6 the court has is, quote, unquote, a sanction, 7 and the sanctions provision is not part of the 8 rule, it's just a comment to the rule, so I 9 don't know procedurally the effect of that 10 other than as a suggestion.

11 THE REPORTER: I can't hear 12 him.

13 CHAIRMAN SOULES: I know. I
14 guess he's not intending for you to hear 15 because he's not speaking loud enough.

16 HON. SCOTT A. BRISTER: Well, I
17 didn't want to interrupt. I'm just saying 18 it's not a part of 215 because it's not 19 discovery. It's not a part of 13 because it 20 ain't a pleading. I suppose this is an 21 inherent power sanction. They ought to think 22 about whether they're impliedly endorsing
23 inherent power sanctions, which I think 24 probably some members don't intend to be doing 25 that. There is no rule providing for

1 sanctions for not objecting or requesting 2 proper form and other -- for not filing a 3 pleading. Okay.

4 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Bill
5 Dorsaneo.

6 PROFESSOR DORSANEO: Well, I
7 have studied these for several weeks.

8 MS. SWEENEY: How did you get 9 them? Excuse me.

10 PROFESSOR DORSANEO: Because I
11 got them earlier than the rest of you.

12 And this change strikes me as no
13 particular big deal, and I'll tell you why.
14 The first paragraph still makes it mandatory 15 that the party with the burden to plead make a 16 request, and it still provides that requests 17 and objections may be made contemporaneously
18 in its first line. Granted, the objection
19 preserves the complaint if counsel doesn't do 20 what's mandated by paragraph (a), but if you 21 think about this operationally, the type of 22 objection that would be required to take the 23 place of the request would be essentially 24 equivalent to what the written request would 25 provide, and to me all we're talking about is

1           whether somebody does it in writing or does it
2           orally with about the same degree of detail.

3           I might suggest that the Court consider 4           adding a little bit of language to the second 5           sentence in paragraph (b) to make the 6           interpretation I just gave of paragraph (b)
7           clearer, and this would match up to what Paula 8           said a minute ago about the reasonable 9           guidance point.

10          I would perhaps suggest that the second 11          sentence say an objection must, one, identify 12          the portion of the charge to which complaint 13          is made; two, be specific enough to enable the 14          trial court to make an informed ruling on the 15          objection; and add this or something like 16          this, borrowing from paragraph (a), "and 17          provide the court reasonable guidance in 18          fashioning the charge."

19          Then all we're talking about for sure, 20          and I think if you thought about it, you would 21          have to conclude that that's implicit in the 22          second sentence anyway, but then all we would 23          be doing for sure is saying, if you screw up 24          and you don't make your request but the trial 25          judge is fully aware of exactly how you want

1 the charge changed because you've said so,
2 then you're okay and you're not just aced out
3 because of a technical failure to make a 4 written request. And otherwise I don't think 5 it's really a big deal.

6 CHAIRMAN SOULES: So what is 7 your specific suggestion again, Bill?

8 PROFESSOR DORSANEO: To take 9 that language that's in the fifth line of 10 paragraph (a), "provide the court reasonable 11 guidance in fashioning the charge," and add it 12 to the end of the second sentence in (b).

13 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Discussion?
14 Richard Orsinger.

15 MR. ORSINGER: Bill's
16 suggestion makes me uncomfortable because I 17 think it could be interpreted as requiring 18 that an objection also include the proposed 19 language. If the objection must give 20 reasonable guidance in fashioning the charge, 21 then you've got to do more than point out a 22 defect in my view; you have to pose a 23 solution.

24 PROFESSOR DORSANEO: That's 25 what I would require, yes.

1                   MR. ORSINGER: Okay. Well, 2 see, first of all, I think that goes against 3 the thrust of what the Supreme Court said,
4 which is that you don't have to propose a 5 solution in order to be able to complain on 6 appeal firstly; but secondly, if we are in 7 fact going to require people to propose a 8 solution, we ought to have them do that in a 9 proposed solution rather than an objection.

10                   To me the purpose of an objection is to 11 point out a complaint, not necessarily to 12 propose a solution. And to say that we're 13 going to take part (a), which has to do with 14 the duty to submit proposed language, and put 15 it over and make it part of (b), which is 16 stating an objection to the way the court has 17 done something, is worse than what we sent the 18 Supreme Court to begin with.

19                   And it frightens me because I think a lot 20 of people are -- an objection has just got to 21 be criticism without a proposal of a 22 replacement, and if you put your language in 23 there, it could be interpreted to require a 24 proposal.

25                   CHAIRMAN SOULES: Rusty, and

1 then I'll get back to you, Judge Guittard. I
2 didn't mean to skip you.

3 MR. McMAINS: Well, I think 4 that Bill's suggestion is more hurtful than 5 even the Supreme Court's because of what 6 the -- the thrust of what we did initially was 7 to say that we were trying to remove the 8 substantially correct language in -- and make 9 the objection practice being the preservation
10 engine, as it were. But if you add reasonable 11 guidance to the requirement for the 12 sufficiency of any objection, regardless of 13 whether you have the burden to plead it or 14 not, then you have basically then repudiated 15 the limiting notion that we had when we 16 initially formulated this rule where we don't 17 have to tell people how to submit their case.
18 We can tell them what's wrong with it, but we 19 don't have to try and tell them how to change 20 it and how to make it right.

21 CHAIRMAN SOULES: That's right.

22 MR. McMAINS: That was a lot of 23 the thrust of this entire exercise in changing 24 the Charge Rules in the first place. If you 25 put that reasonable guidance baggage on to the

1 sufficiency of the objection, then you are 2 right back where you started, and all you've 3 done is you've just expanded the objection to 4 include a request, so you've adopted basically 5 Corpus Christi's view of the law, which I 6 think is wrong and is not what we were 7 supposed to be doing and not what we should be 8 doing.

9 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Judge
10 Guittard.

11 HON. C. A. GUITTARD: I have 12 another suggestion here when the time comes.

13 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Go ahead.

14 HON. C. A. GUITTARD: To 15 resolve the problem that you raised earlier, I 16 would suggest that in the first sentence of 17 (b) it be made to read "A party may not 18 complain of any error in the charge unless 19 that party makes a request as provided by 20 paragraph (a) or objects thereto" and so 21 forth.

22 MS. SWEENEY: Say that again,
23 Judge, please.

24 HON. C. A. GUITTARD: "A party
25 may not complain of any error in the charge

1 unless that party makes a request as provided 2 by paragraph (a) or objects thereto before the 3 charge is read" and so forth, so that you can 4 preserve the error either by a request or by 5 an objection, and that's to respond to the 6 problem that you've raised.

7 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Paula
8 Sweeney.

9 MS. SWEENEY: I'm afraid, Judge
10 Guittard, I have to disagree with that 11 suggestion. I think that would double-sandbag 12 the court, because you can have a party
13 impliedly going along with the court's charge 14 without objecting to a final product and 15 relying simply on the fact that they had 16 submitted something different without bringing 17 it to the court's attention.

18 The whole purpose of a big part of this 19 was to be sure the court knew what it was 20 doing and knew if there was in fact an 21 objection so there wouldn't be sandbagging; 22 that the court wouldn't think that folks were 23 acquiescing to charge problems that they 24 weren't, so I think that would even be double 25 worse than what the Court has already done.

1 HON. C. A. GUITTARD: Well, 2 it's got to go one way or the other, it seems 3 like to me.

4 CHAIRMAN SOULES: I think the 5 intent here is, do you have to object in order 6 to preserve error. That's the policy that the 7 Court has articulated. It just may not be as 8 clear as it needs to be. Maybe I'm the only 9 one that has a problem with it, and if that's 10 the case, then we can move on. Paul Gold.

11 MR. GOLD: I just have a 12 question about the last sentence of (a). Is 13 it possible to interpret (a) of that sentence 14 to mean that if someone made one objection, 15 but not an objection to every aspect of the 16 charge, that they would preserve error as to 17 all?

18 CHAIRMAN SOULES: I don't 19 understand what you're -- I'm sorry, I'm not 20 following you. Will you give me a little bit 21 more help?

22 MR. GOLD: "Failure to comply 23 with this paragraph shall not preclude the 24 party from assigning error in the charge if an 25 objection is made pursuant to paragraph (b)."

1 I don't know. I'm looking at that and I'm 2 thinking someone could read that to mean if 3 they made one objection --

4 MR. LATTING: Well, except,
5 Luke --

6 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Well, (b) is 7 much more specific than one objection
8 preserves every error in the charge. It's 9 much more focused. The objection under (b) 10 has criteria.

11 MR. GOLD: If any objection has 12 been -- well, then I guess I don't --

13 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Joe Latting.

14 MR. LATTING: Well, if you have 15 to make the objection pursuant to paragraph 16 (b), and (b) says an objection must identify 17 that portion of the charge and so on, then you 18 have to make the objection pursuant to 19 paragraph (b) in order to complain of the 20 charge. And paragraph (b) says that an 21 objection must identify that portion of the 22 charge to which complaint is made and be 23 specific enough and so on.

24 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Okay.

25 MR. LATTING: So I'm agreeing

1 with you on that.

2 CHAIRMAN SOULES: There's no
3 problem. Richard Orsinger.

4 MR. ORSINGER: To address a
5 point you raised, Luke, I think, and to get to 6 the level that Paula was talking about 7 involving the task force, normally we preserve
8 complaints by objections, but the trial judges 9 very much wanted to force advocates to give 10 them proposed language, and their argument was 11 that they didn't have staff attorneys like the 12 federal judges did that could do their work 13 for them and they needed the lawyers do the 14 work for them, and therefore the only way we 15 could force people to give the trial judges 16 proposed language was to say that you don't 17 preserve error over the exclusion of your 18 language unless you propose it.

19 And then we had this argument of, well, 20 who has the duty to propose, because the 21 burden of proof may switch in the middle of 22 the jury verdict depending upon whether 23 there's a fiduciary relationship found or 24 whatever in jury deliberations.

25 And so what we finally ended up doing was

1 saying, well, whoever has the burden to plead
2 has the burden to tender or submit, and if you
3 have the burden to plead, you have the burden
4 to tender or submit, and then if you don't 5 tender or submit, then you can't complain.

6 And then another problem developed 7 because the courts of appeals said, well, if 8 you tender or submit but you don't use
9 substantially correct language, then you
10 haven't preserved error. Well, what happened 11 was people were waiving error all the time by 12 not tendering in substantially correct form, 13 even though they were making a good faith 14 effort, and yet the only reason that we were 15 making them tender a requirement at all was to 16 just motivate them to give the court something 17 to act on.

18 It seems to me what the Supreme Court has 19 said here is that we can motivate the lawyers 20 to submit language by ordering them to submit 21 language and then threatening to punish them 22 if they don't submit language, and that we 23 don't need to complicate the preservation of 24 error with the effort to motivate lawyers to 25 submit. And that makes life simpler because

1 then we completely divorce ourselves from this 2 substantially correct submission law that's 3 existed for so long that everyone is 4 dissatisfied with.

5 And I think what the Supreme Court is 6 saying is that let's just treat it like other 7 objections. You can preserve by objecting,
8 and if the court needs help, they should order 9 the lawyers to give help; and if the lawyers 10 don't give them help, then they ought to 11 punish the lawyers, and to me that's a 12 sensible approach to this. And the only 13 opposition that I've ever heard so far is 14 trial judges being opposed to not having the 15 hammer to force lawyers to help them, and the 16 Supreme Court is now saying sanctions are your 17 hammer.

18 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Yeah. The 19 Supreme Court has articulated, has signaled
20 what its policy is going to be. Let's focus 21 the debate on what's back on our table, and 22 that is, does the language in this rule 23 articulate in a workable way the policy that 24 the Supreme Court has adopted? Judge 25 Brister.

1                   HON. SCOTT A. BRISTER: Yeah, I
2 mean, this is no new signal. They tried to 3 signal this the last time, and my colleagues
4 screamed and yelled so loud and threatened 5 rebellion that they backed down on it. And 6 I'll bet you they're going to do the same 7 thing again.

8                   Let me see if I understand the way this 9 works. So plaintiff comes in and says, "I 10 object. You haven't put a RICO charge in 11 there."

12                   And I say, "I don't know RICO from 13 anything. It's not in the PJC, and I don't 14 know what to submit. Give it to me."

15                   And they say, "No."

16                   And I say, "I'm going to sanction you."

17                   And they say, "Well, what are you going 18 to sanction me with?"

19                   Well, the only punishment that would fit 20 that crime is "If you don't give it to me, I'm 21 not going to submit it." But that's the one I 22 can't give. That's the sanction that I cannot 23 give, the one that fits the crime. So what 24 sanction am I going to give them? I'm going 25 to cut your argument time to five minutes? I

1 appreciate the hammer, but I don't know what 2 it is.

3 MR. GOLD: Don't let them argue
4 at all.

5 HON. SCOTT A. BRISTER: That's 6 the only punishment that fits that crime, that 7 if you don't give it to me, I ain't submitting 8 it, but that's the one that's specifically 9 prohibited.

10 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Does the 11 language in this rule articulate in a workable 12 way the policy that the Supreme Court has 13 committed itself to? That's what's before
14 us. We can't redebate that it ought to be a 15 different policy.

16 HON. SCOTT A. BRISTER: And I'm 17 saying the sanction does not. It tells me I 18 can't use the one that makes sense to use, but 19 I have no idea what I am supposed to use.

20 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Okay.
21 Justice Duncan.

22 HON. SARAH DUNCAN: Well, I
23 think I'm on record as fully supporting this, 24 so I won't surprise anyone when I say I think 25 it's a great rule. I think it is written in a

1 way that can be implemented easily, and I have 2 to disagree with Scott.

3 The failure to comply with paragraph (a), 4 the failure to make a request, may not -- will 5 not preclude assignment of error as to that 6 omission from the charge, but it may very well 7 be that your sanctions order will preclude the 8 ability to assign error to it.

9 And I think by leaving it open, the 10 Court, in leaving it in a comment, these 11 aren't hard and fast rules, and there may be 12 extenuating circumstances where someone 13 doesn't make a request and it hasn't caused 14 any harm. It's a PJC charge and people have 15 it on their shelves. It leaves it flexible 16 for the trial courts to work with.

17 I think if a trial court has a pretrial 18 order that says, "You will request your 19 proposed charge by x, y and z date," a failure 20 to comply with a direct court order opens a 21 large range of possible sanctions, and it may 22 not be that failure to submit is the 23 appropriate sanction in a particular case. It 24 may be that some other sanction is a better 25 sanction.

1 HON. SCOTT A. BRISTER: Such 2 as?

3 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Paul Gold.

4 MR. GOLD: I agree with Judge
5 Brister with respect to the sanctions. I
6 think it's antithetical to the whole concept 7 that the Supreme Court has been moving to with 8 regard to sanctions in discovery; that if 9 you're going to impose a sanction on someone, 10 that it's defined what the sanction is for due 11 process purposes and so that the court can 12 structure the appropriate sanction.

13 Here there's absolutely nothing in that 14 regard. There's no structure for the judge.
15 There's no structure for the attorneys.
16 There's this amorphous concept that if you
17 don't do it something bad will happen to you, 18 but what's to define whether the judge went to 19 the least -- I forget what the Transamerica
20 is, but I wonder if they would apply
21 Transamerica to this concept that you start 22 with the least stringent sanction and work
23 your way up. I think that is a problem. I
24 think they need to clarify what the sanction 25 would be.

1                   CHAIRMAN SOULES: Well, one of 2 the obvious responses for the trial judge is 3 to say, "You say RICO. Who is RICO? I don't 4 have enough information to rule on the 5 objection. I need more information. If you
6 will provide me with that information, I will 7 make an informed ruling on your claim, but is 8 RICO a citizen of this county?"

9                   I mean, you've got to have enough
10 information under the objection. It 11 articulates, it has criteria, and beyond that, 12 what?

13                   Rusty, and then we'll come around the 14 table, and then we need to move on.

15                   MR. McMANS: Well, the 16 principal problem, one of the principal 17 problems I have with this so-called recast of 18 the rule is that there is nothing in the rule 19 to that gives the sanction. It's in the 20 comment. Now, we have never done that before 21 in the history of this Committee. We've never 22 had, and certainly not in regards to creating 23 a new power of the trial court to sanction,
24 we've never put that in a comment as opposed 25 to in the body of rule and relate it to 1 something.

2 Whenever in the past we have ever
3 attempted to put in sanctions somewhere that 4 was a little bit unusual that was outside of 5 the discovery area, we put it in. We said
6 pursuant to the Rule 215 you can impose 7 sanctions under Rule 215 for a violation of 8 whatever type of rule.

9 I mean, there will be courts on this 10 comment that will construe that you can go 11 straight to the sanctions rule and apply it to 12 any of the sanctions there, which will have 13 the same or actually a worse effect, perhaps a 14 more devastating effect than merely a claim of 15 waiver, because they can make under the list 16 of sanctions a determination that an issue is 17 determined a particular way based on their 18 conduct in terms of what alternative lists of 19 sanctions they can do, if they have all of 20 those.

21 And then you're relegated to the question 22 of whether it was an abuse of discretion of 23 the trial court to sanction rather than 24 dealing with the appropriate issue, which is 25 whether or not the judge knew what was going

1 on and why he was not given the charge.

2 CHAIRMAN SOULES: What are we 3 talking about? Please, help me. Are we 4 talking about perhaps telling the Court that 5 they ought to delete the language in the 6 comment that the court may sanction the party 7 who fails --

8 MR. McMANS: No. What I'm 9 saying is --

10 CHAIRMAN SOULES: I want
11 something specific. We've got a lot of do 12 here. We can't just sit around and beat 13 this --

14 MR. McMANS: You asked me what 15 was workable. There is nothing in (a) that 16 authorizes a sanction for its violation.

17 CHAIRMAN SOULES: So what are 18 we going to do about it?

19 MR. McMANS: And there's 20 nothing in the comment that identifies where 21 the hell there's any authority to sanction.

22 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Well, what 23 would you do about it?

24 MR. McMANS: Well, if you're 25 going to put a sanction ability in, it needs

1 to be put in. And then you have to do
2 something in terms of telling procedurally or 3 get somebody some notice of what the hell the 4 sanctions are, what it is that's available to 5 them. Is it the full range in 215? Do we 6 just go to the 215 categories and say that 7 they can impose any of those? Because if he 8 has the power, he can damn sure get a 9 submission by somebody if he says, "I have the 10 power to determine that issue adversely to you 11 as a matter of sanction. Now, do you want 12 that, or do you want to submit me something?"
13 Now, that will probably be fairly effective.

14 But I agree with him that the entire 15 notion here of there not being a waiver of 16 error or whatever and you have a right to 17 complain by objection is kind of antithetical 18 to that notion, so it's inconsistent. But if 19 that's what they want to do, then they at 20 least need to spell it out, because there's no
21 notice whatsoever in this rule as to what it 22 is a trial judge can do to you or do to a 23 party for not doing something.

24 CHAIRMAN SOULES: David
25 Keltner.

1 MR. KELTNER: Luke, I have two 2 suggestions. The first suggestion is that we 3 eliminate the sanction provision in the 4 comment or suggest to the Court that they 5 ought to consider it, and I take it we're sort 6 of talking to the Court through the transcript 7 here.

8 My point would be this: The Supreme 9 Court has told us that what they want is 10 uniformity in the way cases are submitted 11 through the charge submission rules; and that 12 we make that easier so not only a dozen 13 lawyers in Texas know how to do it, which has 14 been the -- which I've heard at least the 15 Chief Justice say it in the hall. If that's 16 the case, the sanction rule is likely to be 17 applied not in a uniform way. It is much more 18 likely, and I think the experience throughout 19 the state is, trial judges look at sanction
20 rules differently from their fellow judges 21 down the hall, and whether that be good or 22 bad, that's the practical effect.

23 And I think putting sanctions in a
24 comment causes even worse problems, and I
25 would eliminate or I would ask the Supreme

1 Court to consider eliminating the sanctions
2 provision in the comment to the rule.

3 That leaves only one issue at least in my 4 mind, because the Supreme Court has told us 5 philosophically what they want to do. They 6 want to have a situation where we preserve by 7 objection. And if that's the case, my 8 suggestion would be leave (a) as it is, but go
9 to (b) and make Bill Dorsaneo's change.

10 I disagree with what Richard Orsinger
11 said respectfully, because I do admit that 12 there might be some problems, but I think we 13 need to make clear or the Court needs to make 14 clear to the practitioners that the objection 15 needs to be specific and point out with 16 reasonable clarity what the problem is.

17 But I think maybe in a comment the 18 Supreme Court ought to consider saying that 19 that doesn't mean that they have to tell you 20 exactly how to solve the problem. But I think 21 Bill Dorsaneo's proposed change is workable 22 and is something that will put this issue to 23 rest and not do bad harm.

24 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Well,
25 Rusty -- I don't know if you -- Rusty made the

1 point that our Committee, I guess the Supreme 2 Court may have heard it, I don't know, that we 3 didn't want to have to write the adversary's
4 charge.

5 MR. KELTNER: Luke, I
6 understand that, and I think that Rusty makes 7 a very good point. There is no doubt, though,
8 that, again, I see the Supreme Court saying 9 two things. An objection is good enough, so 10 we're going to -- you don't have to submit it 11 in substantially correct form.

12 Remember, most of our discussion was 13 really, on that issue, Rusty, was over 14 substantially correct form, and that's where 15 the problems really came. If you're making an 16 objection and you have to be, one, specific, 17 and reasonably tell the court what the basis 18 for your objection is, and maybe that's the 19 language we ought to have, the basis for the 20 objection, that doesn't seem to me to tell the 21 court or tell the other side how to do the 22 charge.

23 But Luke, even if it did, the truth of 24 the matter is we ought not to have somebody 25 hiding behind the log saying, "I see something

1 wrong. I'm not going to tell you what it is.
2 I see something wrong, and Judge, if you don't 3 change it, na-na-na, I'm going to reverse you
4 on appeal." Anybody would find that situation 5 laughable that wasn't a lawyer, and no one
6 loves lawyers more than I, but that is silly.

7 We ought to get over the idea that we're 8 trying lawsuits just for ourselves, and we 9 ought to try the charge deal one time and one 10 time only and not have reversals on that 11 basis, even though it will cost me a lot of 12 business, so I'd go with Bill Dorsaneo's
13 change.

14 CHAIRMAN SOULES: An objection
15 could be made, for example, plaintiff
16 submitting the incorrect measure of damages 17 that's out of pocket and not benefit of the 18 bargain. That's my objection. Now, that 19 probably doesn't provide the court reasonable 20 guidance in fashioning the charge because it 21 doesn't have enough words, but it's an 22 adequate objection, isn't it?

23 MR. KELTNER: But my point is 24 the language ought to be more. The specific 25 language ought to reasonably inform the court

1 of the basis of your objection.

2 CHAIRMAN SOULES: That's what
3 this says has to happen in (b).

4 MR. KELTNER: But if that's the 5 case, Luke, I don't think I've got to tell you 6 precisely how to solve it, I've just got to 7 tell you why I am upset, which means more than 8 "I object, he has the wrong measure of 9 damages."

10 CHAIRMAN SOULES: David Perry.

11 MR. PERRY: The objection ought 12 to give the court reasonable guidance as to 13 how to cure the error that is being complained 14 of. I agree very much with what David Keltner
15 says, that the object is to get a correct
16 charge. The object is not to lay the basis 17 for an appeal.

18 The public is demanding that trials be 19 more efficient and that the legal system be 20 more efficient, and the objective of this 21 whole procedure should be to arrive at a 22 reasonably correct charge that will stand up 23 on appeal rather than to lay the basis for an 24 appeal. The gamesmanship that is inherent in 25 the concept that one side does not have to

1 write the other side's charge is not something 2 that is in the public interest.

3 I personally have no problem with the old
4 rule that you had to submit a substantially
5 correct request of that part of the charge
6 that was yours, but if we are going to go away 7 from that, and if we are going to go to an 8 objection-only procedure, then the objection 9 needs to not only inform the court as to the 10 basis for the objection, but it should also 11 give the court reasonable guidance as to how 12 to cure the objection and get to a correct
13 charge.

15 Peeples.

16 HON. DAVID PEEPLES: I have 17 several points. On sanctions, I think that 18 the sanction provision is just useless. I 19 wouldn't be the slightest bit interested in 20 exercising that power. I agree with the 21 criticisms that have been made that there's 22 nothing in the black letter of the rule and we 23 shouldn't say something in the comment, so I 24 would join the efforts to recommend that the 25 Supreme Court take that out.

1           Now, point two, to me the important
2 language in this context is the middle 3 sentence in (b), lines 32 to 34, which say 4 that an objection must be specific enough to 5 enable the trial court to make an informed
6 ruling on the objection. I will grant you 7 that there will be some appellate cases that 8 will have to say, you know, it wasn't specific 9 enough, but that doesn't bother me.

10           I think that, you know, judges are going 11 to have to dialogue with lawyers, Luke. If 12 somebody says I want out of pocket or loss of 13 bargain or something, what's wrong with the 14 judge saying, "Well, what do you mean by 15 that?" or "Where can I find one of those?"

16           And I think that in PJC cases this is not 17 going to be a problem, because in my mind if 18 someone says, "I want section so and so of the 19 PJC," that ought to be enough. That ought to 20 be specific enough to preserve error.

21           Now, on RICO, Scott, I think frankly that 22 if someone said, "I want a RICO charge," I
23 just can't believe that the appellate courts 24 are going to say that's specific enough to try 25 it in court, you know. Reasonable --

1                   HON. SCOTT A. BRISTER: The 2 objection is "you haven't included a RICO
3 charge in the charge." That is specific 4 enough to let me know what I'm doing wrong.

5                   HON. DAVID PEEPLES: Yeah. But 6 can always say, "Do you have one? Where would 7 I find one?"

8                   And if they say, "I want the one that's 9 on page so and so of this case from the Fifth 10 Circuit," that might be good enough. But this 11 is going to make it a little bit more
12 difficult for trial judges to handle it, but I 13 think we can live with it. If someone says, 14 "I want a fraud definition that's out of the 15 Supreme Court case of so and so," well, 16 that's -- we can live with that.

17                   This is not going to be a problem in PJC 18 cases, which is the great bulk of what we do.
19 And in other cases, I can't believe that the 20 ultimate decision by the appellate system is 21 going to be all you've got to do is say, "I 22 want a RICO charge," and the case gets 23 reversed if it should have been submitted and 24 that's all we've got. I mean, that won't 25 happen.

1 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Joe Latting.

2 MR. LATTING: It seems to me
3 the Supreme Court is very clear about what it 4 wants from the Committee, and the question is 5 what are we going to do about the sanctions 6 footnote or comment. And I think we should 7 encourage the Court not to have a comment 8 about sanctions unless we spell it out in the 9 rule what the criteria are for that sanction.

10 So I'm going to, at an appropriate time,
11 move that we suggest to the Court that it 12 remove the reference to sanctions in the 13 comment and let the rule stand as it is 14 otherwise.

15 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Okay. Do you
16 want to do that now and we'll see if there's a 17 second? We can at least do that now.

18 HON. DAVID PEEPLES: I'll 19 second it.

20 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Okay. It's 21 been moved and seconded that we delete, I 22 guess, the last --

23 HON. SCOTT A. BRISTER: Drop
24 the comment.

25 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Delete the

1 comment entirely?

2 MR. LATTING: Yes. Well, at 3 least as it has to do with sanctions.

4 HON. SARAH DUNCAN: That's all
5 it is.

6 HON. SCOTT A. BRISTER: Luke,
7 may I say on that --

8 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Okay. And 9 it's been moved and seconded. Discussion.
10 Judge Brister.

11 HON. SCOTT A. BRISTER: I'm 12 going to join on that, but I would say that my 13 vote in favor for moving this is not a vote in 14 favor that the trial judge can't do anything.
15 So if somebody says, "Well, I want you to add 16 this to the charge," and you know, we're at 17 the end of a three-day trial and they know 18 what it's about and they're just not 19 organized, they don't have it ready, they 20 don't know what they want me to submit, you
21 know, "Judge, I need" -- here, let me write it 22 down for you, and they waste 30 minutes of the 23 jury's time, which, from a trial judge's 24 perspective, the worst thing you can do is 25 leave the jury sitting out in the hall while

1 the judge and the lawyers are bickering about 2 some procedural matter. And somebody is going 3 to pay for it, and it ain't going to be me, so 4 I'm going to take that time out of closing 5 arguments.

6 I don't want a rule that says that,
7 because I'm concerned about, you know, that 8 somebody is going to grab that rule and just 9 direct the verdict, and we'll save a lot of 10 time. We'll just end the case right now. And 11 I don't want that kind of a rule.

12 But I do want -- I'm going to still take 13 some time out of closing arguments if I have 14 to waste time writing somebody's charge rule 15 when they're too lazy to do it. Nobody in 16 this room, but it happens all the time.
17 They're too lazy or disorganized to do it.
18 That's fine. I'll do it. No problem, but I'm 19 going to take it out of their closing
20 argument.

21 And so I don't want my vote to be 22 interpreted that just dropping this is a vote 23 that the judge shouldn't be able to do nothing 24 to somebody.

25 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Elaine.

1                   PROFESSOR CARLSON: Joe, was 2 your suggestion to remove the comment and then 3 include language pertaining to that, or 4 nothing?

5                   MR. LATTING: No, just to drop 6 the comment, because if we include language, I 7 think that we are bound by Transamerican to 8 state how the sanction should be applied and 9 when, and as Paul said, instructions about 10 trying the least intrusive sanction, and we're 11 going to get into a mess that we would never 12 get out of.

13                   PROFESSOR CARLSON: Do you
14 agree with Justice Duncan, then, that it's a 15 Rule 166 matter as far as sanctions?

16                   MR. LATTING: Why do I feel 17 like I'm being cross-examined all of a sudden?

18                   PROFESSOR CARLSON: Because 19 you're the sanctions guru.

20                   MR. LATTING: Let's see, I
21 don't know. No, it's not a 166, is it?
22 That's discovery.

23                   MR. ORSINGER: It's pretrial, a 24 pretrial order.

25                   MR. LATTING: Well, I guess if

1 there was a pretrial order in place that it 2 could be handled that way, but --

3 HON. SCOTT A. BRISTER: I've 4 never seen a case that said, okay, you have to 5 bring your jury instructions to the pretrial 6 conference, but if you don't, you don't get to 7 submit. Then, you know, everybody is going to 8 say that the operative time on the charge is 9 when the evidence is closed before the jury 10 comes in. I can't imagine I'm going to be 11 able to not submit it because he didn't bring 12 it a week before trial at the pretrial 13 conference.

14 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Well, let's 15 get on with it. I guess this is still on 16 sanctions. Is there anything else on whether 17 or not to recommend to the Court they delete
18 the comment?

19 Okay. Those in favor of deleting the 20 comment show by hands.

21 Is anyone opposed?

22 It's unanimous that we recommended to the 23 Court that they delete the comment.

24 Okay. Anything else on the Charge Rules?
25 Richard Orsinger.

1 MR. ORSINGER: I noticed a
2 parallel construction issue here. On 3 paragraph (a), we say that you're entitled to 4 various things if they're raised by the 5 written pleadings, but in paragraph (b) we say 6 that you submit questions raised by the 7 pleadings. I think maybe we ought to use the 8 word "written" in (b) so that there's no 9 confusion about whether an oral amendment or 10 trial amendment or something like that might 11 be sufficient.

12 MR. YELENOSKY: Is that a 13 pleading?

14 MR. ORSINGER: (b) as in boy.

15 MR. YELENOSKY: Yeah, but is 16 something that's not written a pleading, or is 17 that just redundant?

18 MR. ORSINGER: I think there's 19 a lot of confusion right now whether you can 20 make an oral trial amendment in trial and then 21 have a jury charge based on the judge granting 22 your oral amendment. (a) makes it clear that 23 you must get your trial amendment reduced to 24 writing before you go to the jury. (b) leaves 25 it a little bit floating, I think.

1 MR. YELENOSKY: Well, is an
2 oral trial amendment a pleading? I mean, I
3 just hate to complicate language. If 4 "pleading" entails writing, as I think it 5 should, then perhaps we shouldn't refer to an 6 oral trial amendment as a pleading, and maybe 7 we don't.

8 MR. ORSINGER: Well, we have 9 (a) that talks about you're entitled only when 10 it's in the written pleadings, and (b) says 11 you're entitled in the pleadings, and then 12 that leads us to the debate of whether an oral 13 amendment granted is a pleading or not. It 14 ought to be consistent. Why create an 15 argument?

16 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Those in 17 favor of adding the word "written" in the 18 second line of 277(b) show by hands. Two.

19 Those opposed. Two.

20 Okay. Two to two.

21 MR. LATTING: This is a hotly
22 debated issue here.

23 MR. ORSINGER: Not a very 24 important point, eh?

25 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Okay. Does

1 anyone else have any motions that you want to 2 make?

3 PROFESSOR DORSANEO: I do.

4 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Bill
5 Dorsaneo.

6 PROFESSOR DORSANEO: Well, I've 7 listened to what everybody said about my 8 initial suggestion, and I still believe that 9 the reasonable guidance standard ought to be 10 in the second sentence of paragraph (b) of 11 Rule 278. I'm not altogether sure about 12 whether the words "fashioning the charge"
13 capture what I think should be added or go too 14 far, so let me try to move this adjustment:
15 "An objection must" -- and I'm now reading 16 the second sentence of paragraph (b) -- "an 17 objection must identify that portion of the 18 charge to which complaint is made," now 19 insert, "provide the court reasonable guidance 20 in curing the error, and be specific enough to 21 enable the trial court to make an informed
22 ruling on the objection."

23 I'm not wedded to the specific language, 24 I'm just making it in a specific form for the 25 purpose of getting the motion made. My idea

1 would be that that makes your objection about 2 the measure of damages good enough because you
3 identify the kind of change you want. You 4 want it to be benefit of the bargain rather 5 than out of pocket or vice versa. That gives 6 reasonable guidance to somebody who is capable 7 of being guided.

8 And Justice Peeples' comments about what 9 he thinks would be helpful and adequate, that 10 to me is reasonable guidance, some sort of 11 reasonable guidance about what to do.

12 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Joe, and I'll 13 go around this way.

14 MR. LATTING: Well, with due
15 respect, we're just going back to -- we're 16 trying to fuzz the issue there. Either you do 17 have to submit it or you don't. And the 18 Supreme Court is telling us you don't have to 19 submit the other person's case. Now, maybe 20 that's good or bad, but when you say, "give 21 them reasonable guidance," what does that 22 mean? Does that mean show me an issue? When 23 Scott Brister says -- I mean, how much do you 24 have to say in your objection? The Court is 25 saying an objection is good enough, and if we

1 say reasonable guidance, it seems to me we're 2 asking for a reasonable submission of the 3 issue. And if we don't mean that, why are we 4 saying it?

5 PROFESSOR DORSANEO: I would at 6 least say that the Court needs to resolve this 7 controversy that we have here in the 8 Committee. We're either going to be working 9 together to do a charge that is an adequately 10 accurate fair charge, or we're going to be 11 encouraging both lawyers and judges to say,
12 "I'm smarter than you are, and I'm on this 13 path, and unless you can really be precise 14 enough to point out exactly how it should be 15 done, then good luck to you," which is our 16 practice now in some places.

18 Peeples.

19 HON. DAVID PEEPLES: I want to 20 focus on reasonable guidance. It is ironical 21 for a request to have to give reasonable 22 guidance but an objection concerning an 23 omission of an instruction would not have to 24 give reasonable guidance. There's something 25 wrong with that.

1           Could we not cure that problem by adding 2           the following language on line 28: "objection 3           is made pursuant to paragraph (b) which gives 4           the court reasonable guidance." In other 5           words, that would require, if you're going to 6           have an objection to take the place of a 7           request, it has to give reasonable guidance, 8           and that would strengthen it a little bit, but 9           that wouldn't require that an objection to 10          something already in the charge give 11          reasonable guidance.

12                   CHAIRMAN SOULES: Well, the 13          difference between (a) and (b) is that in (a) 14          you only have to do that if you have the 15          burden to plead; (b), you have to do that 16          whether or not you have the burden to plead.

17                   PROFESSOR DORSANEO: Well, I
18          don't think that should make any difference.

19                   MR. LATTING: But that's the 20          philosophical question.

21                   CHAIRMAN SOULES: But there is 22          a difference, so whether -- and I guess the 23          debate is should it be, should it make a 24          difference.

25                   Going around table here past Judge

1 Peeples, anyone else here? Paula Sweeney.

2 MS. SWEENEY: If you do what's 3 been suggested and incorporate the reasonable 4 guidance standard into the objection, since 5 you've taken the drafting standard from the 6 issue that you have the burden on, which is 7 the reasonable guidance, you've taken the 8 drafting standard and you've incorporated it
9 into the objection and made it the standard 10 for the objection, we're right back to writing 11 the other side's issues.

12 CHAIRMAN SOULES: That's right.

13 MS. SWEENEY: And the Court has 14 said we're not going to do that. We're not 15 even going to have to write our own, much less 16 the other side's, so I think that would really 17 be contrary to the policy that's been 18 enunciated.

19 PROFESSOR DORSANEO: If you
20 look at their decisions like the Payne
21 decision, the Payne decision simply says you 22 don't have to do it with a red hat on, you 23 know, with sunglasses. You just have to 24 provide the court with enough information so 25 the court can see what the complaint really is

1 so that the court can make a ruling. And if 2 it's done this way or that way or all
3 together, in the context of trial court 4 proceedings, that's good enough.

5 CHAIRMAN SOULES: All right.
6 Is there any second to Bill's motion?

7 MR. KELTNER: Second.

8 MR. PERRY: Second.

9 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Bill's motion
10 is -- will you state again what you want added 11 and where.

12 PROFESSOR DORSANEO: "An 13 objection must" -- I want to add the words 14 "and provide the court reasonable guidance in 15 curing the error" after the word "made" in the 16 fourth line of paragraph (b).

17 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Okay. Is 18 that what you seconded?

19 PROFESSOR DORSANEO: Yes. And 20 put a comma after it.

21 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Okay. Those 22 in favor show by hands.

23 MR. McMains: Can we have some 24 discussion?

25 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Well, we've

1 had a lot.

2 Seven.

3 Those opposed. Eight.

4 It fails by a vote of eight to seven.

5 MR. ORSINGER: I would like to 6 second David Peeples' proposal that you add 7 the duty of reasonable guidance to (a) which 8 limits it to the party who has the burden to 9 plead but doesn't permit them to completely 10 escape the responsibility of giving the trial 11 court some guidance.

12 PROFESSOR DORSANEO: To where?

13 MR. ORSINGER: To the end of 14 (a), line 28.

15 As I understood David's proposal, he was 16 suggesting that we end up that paragraph (a), 17 which has to do with the party that has the 18 burden to plead, that they can get by with 19 just an objection as long as their objection 20 gives reasonable guidance.

21 CHAIRMAN SOULES: That's the 22 same thing we just voted on.

23 MR. ORSINGER: No, it isn't.
24 It's entirely different, because it only puts 25 the duty of reasonable guidance on the party

1 with the burden to plead, and it doesn't 2 require the defending party to give the 3 guidance for the other side, an entirely 4 different policy, and in my opinion more 5 consistent with the Supreme Court's view, and 6 I would vote for that. I voted against the 7 other.

8 MS. SWEENEY: I second that.

9 MR. LATTING: You have to do
10 that one more time.

11 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Okay. Let me
12 see if I can get that. So we're going to have 13 different standards for objecting. In order
14 to have an adequate objection to preserve 15 appeal, we're going to have different
16 standards applied to those who have the burden 17 to plead than those who don't have the burden 18 to plead. That's what the effect of this is.
19 Now, you're going to have to learn that if you 20 have the burden to plead you have an elevated 21 standard for your objection.

22 PROFESSOR DORSANEO: It's the 23 same standard that operates differently
24 depending upon who you're talking about.

25 CHAIRMAN SOULES: All right.

1 So what are the words? It's been moved and 2 seconded, and I need to get them in here.

3 HON. DAVID PEEPLES: At the end
4 of line 28, "pursuant to paragraph (b), which 5 gives the court reasonable guidance," period.

6 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Reasonable
7 guidance in fashioning the charge?

8 HON. DAVID PEEPLES: Well, 9 that's --

10 MS. SWEENEY: Put it before 11 "is" instead.

12 HON. DAVID PEEPLES: Yeah.
13 After "objection" on line 27?

14 MS. SWEENEY: Yeah.

15 HON. DAVID PEEPLES: "If an 16 objection which gives the court reasonable 17 guidance is made pursuant to paragraph (b)."
18 That's better.

19 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Reasonable
20 guidance in fashioning the charge or what?

21 HON. DAVID PEEPLES: Well, it's 22 obvious that it refers back to that. I don't 23 know why you want to have that parallel.

24 CHAIRMAN SOULES: I don't. I'm 25 just asking the question.

1 HON. DAVID PEEPLES: I would
2 just say "an objection which gives the court 3 reasonable guidance is made pursuant to 4 paragraph (b)."

5 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Okay.
6 Discussion. Rusty.

7 MR. McMAINS: Well, I just want
8 to make an observation in good conscience that 9 that comes close to being what we sent the 10 Court in the first place.

11 MR. ORSINGER: Why did you have 12 to say that?

13 MR. McMAINS: Well, because I
14 think that -- I mean, what happened the first 15 time was we said that -- we actually said do 16 you have to do this as a prerequisite to being 17 able to make an objection, they have to have 18 submitted something, and the Court took that 19 out. And by changing the nature of the 20 objection to do the same thing, you're really 21 accomplishing more or less the same thing.

22 Now, maybe that's -- and if that's what 23 we want to do, that's fine, but I think that's 24 not why they changed it and sent it back to 25 us.

1 PROFESSOR DORSANEO: I bet it
2 is.

3 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Justice
4 Duncan.

5 HON. SARAH DUNCAN: Well, I
6 certainly don't know what's in the collective 7 Supreme Court mind, but my problem with doing 8 that is from an appellate perspective you are 9 once again recreating what I think the primary 10 charge preservation problem is now, which is 11 that it depends on what court you're in, what 12 judges you're before, whether you're 13 representing a plaintiff or a defendant, 14 whether it's a commercial case or a personal 15 injury case. And that's why I have 16 consistently been in favor of taking out
17 anything that looks like substantially 18 correct, reasonable guidance, request plus
19 object, request or object, and making it a 20 simple standard that the courts can't 21 manipulate to achieve particular results.

22 HON. DAVID PEEPLES: Luke.

24 Peeples.

25 HON. DAVID PEEPLES: We've

1 already got the reasonable guidance language
2 on line 26. It's there. We've already got 3 what is close to reasonable guidance in 4 lines 32 through 34, must be specific and the 5 court makes an informed ruling. The language
6 I suggested I think just tightens it up a 7 little bit. We're voting on it, and let's 8 move it on. It's not the end of the world if 9 this things goes down.

10 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Are you
11 saying that what you're adding doesn't change
12 what's already in 32 through 34? And if so, 13 why do we add it?

14 HON. DAVID PEEPLES: I think it 15 strengthens it a little bit for somebody who 16 preserves, you know, what used to be preserved 17 by a request and they don't request, and they 18 preserve by an objection. I think this 19 tightens it up a little bit more and requires 20 them to give a little bit more guidance, but I 21 think it's already good enough the way it is.
22 This just helps you to tighten it up.

23 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Any further
24 discussion? Those in favor show by hands.

25 PROFESSOR ALBRIGHT: This is in

1 favor of David Peebles' language?

2 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Yes. 14.

3 Those opposed. Four.

4 13 to four, that suggestion will be sent 5 to the Court.

6 Anything else on the Charge Rules? Bill.

7 PROFESSOR DORSANEO: Since we 8 are, as David Keltner said, talking to the 9 Court through the record, I would like to 10 state at least for the record that Rule 277, 11 paragraph (b), continues at least to me to 12 create interpretive difficulties in its last 13 three sentences. These difficulties have been 14 discussed by us a lot, but I think they've 15 been possibly exacerbated by collapsing 16 together some of the separate paragraphs that 17 we had. And although I don't plan on debating 18 this all over again, we would be a lot better 19 off, for the record, if we just pitch those 20 last three sentences into the trash can;
21 otherwise, I predict there will be a fair 22 amount of appellate activity about their 23 meaning and whether an inferential rebuttal
24 defense can be submitted in the same question 25 as a ground of recovery possibly repealing or

1           overruling Lemos vs. Montez.

2                           CHAIRMAN SOULES:  Anything else
3           on the Charge Rules?  Paula Sweeney.

4                           MS. SWEENEY:  The question --
5           and this is directed to Lee, and I don't know 6           if -- the new sentence that's added to that 7           paragraph (b) in 277, "A proper disjunctive 8           question that submits a defensive theory as an 9           alternative to a claimants theory is not an 10          impermissible inferential rebuttal
11          submission," maybe that is a model of clarity 12          and I'm just dense today, but I don't 13          understand what that's about.

14                          MR. PARSLEY:  We didn't add 15          it.  That came from the Committee.

16                          MS. SWEENEY:  Really?

17                          PROFESSOR DORSANEO:  Yes, that 18          did come from the Committee, but the "However, 19          inferential rebuttal questions shall not be 20          submitted" was moved into paragraph (b) from a 21          separate paragraph about inferential rebuttal 22          questions.  But I think that points up the 23          problem altogether.

24                          MS. SWEENEY:  Yeah.

25                          MR. PARSLEY:  My recollection

1 about that is that all we did was collapse a
2 series of paragraphs into paragraph (b) there 3 that were in the proposals that came from this 4 Committee, a series of subnumbered paragraphs, 5 but all of that came from the Committee except 6 for being collapsed together. I may be wrong, 7 but that's what I recall.

8 MS. SWEENEY: I think until 9 that sentence I was with you. It was just a 10 collapse, a collapsation, but that's the one 11 that I don't find in any committee draft and 12 which confuses me a little bit.

13 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Anything
14 else? Carl Hamilton.

15 MR. HAMILTON: Paragraph 278(e)
16 says that a claim that there's no evidence to 17 support the submission can only be made after 18 the verdict. Does that mean that that's not a 19 proper objection under 278(b)? You don't have 20 to make that anymore?

21 CHAIRMAN SOULES: It doesn't
22 say it may only be made, it may be made.

23 MR. HAMILTON: May be made for 24 the first time after the verdict?

25 CHAIRMAN SOULES: That there's

1 no evidence, correct.

2 MR. McMAINS: That's always 3 been the law.

4 MR. HAMILTON: But you don't 5 make a no-evidence objection if there's no
6 evidence to submit an issue?

7 CHAIRMAN SOULES: You can make 8 it then.

9 MR. LATTING: You don't have 10 to, though, to preserve error.

11 CHAIRMAN SOULES: But you don't 12 have to, right, to preserve error.

13 MR. LATTING: But that doesn't 14 change the law.

15 MR. ORSINGER: No. That's what 16 a JNOV is.

17 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Anything
18 else? Okay. We've got, then, two -- one 19 change to send to the Court in 278(a); 20 otherwise -- and another to delete the Notes 21 and Comments after 278, and we will send that 22 to the Court and they will take final action
23 on the Charge Rules.

24 Okay. We were asked to take up these 25 rules on petition for review on an expedited

1 basis as I understand that, Lee, is that 2 right?

3 MR. PARSLEY: Well, the 4 petition for review rules, if I can take just 5 a second, Judge Guittard did the original
6 drafting on it, and then I have done
7 subsequent drafting on it which substantially 8 changes what he did, so I don't think I can 9 blame it on him at all.

10 HON. C. A. GUITTARD: Thank 11 you.

12 MR. PARSLEY: And the Court has 13 looked at these rules and would like for the 14 Advisory Committee to look at it and give us 15 some both substantive guidance and technical 16 guidance on what it is the Court is thinking 17 about doing here. This is the proposal that 18 the Court has created outside of the 19 Committee, and we would like to give it to the 20 Committee to talk about, to debate it, to do 21 what you all do about these kind of things.

22 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Would it be 23 helpful to have this done while Justice Hecht 24 is here so that he can tell us maybe where the 25 Court stands on this?

1 MR. PARSLEY: I think so.

2 CHAIRMAN SOULES: I mean, I
3 don't know whether the Court is asking us to 4 comment on the underlying policy or the 5 fundamentals of this change from our current 6 practice to this kind of a practice, or 7 whether the Court has already made up its mind 8 that we're going to go to this practice and 9 abandon the previous practice; and therefore, 10 if they just want our input on how to get to 11 this position because they're going there 12 anyway, I don't know what really our charge is 13 in this regard.

14 MR. PARSLEY: Well, Judge Hecht
15 is supposed to be here.

16 CHAIRMAN SOULES: I'm sure he 17 will be. I'm not commenting about that.

18 MR. PARSLEY: So maybe we 19 should wait for him to get here and let him
20 give the Committee some guidance, because I'm 21 a little uncomfortable in doing that. I think 22 it would be best if he told the Committee 23 where he thinks the Court is going on this and 24 what he would like for the Committee to help 25 us on.

1                   CHAIRMAN SOULES: Well, maybe 2 we ought to postpone this until we can get a 3 comment from Justice Hecht. That makes 4 sense. Lee says it does, so it does as far as 5 I'm concerned.

6                   Bill, do you have an interim report on 7 the Appellate Rules? Bill Dorsaneo.

8                   PROFESSOR DORSANEO: No, other 9 than the report that we received back, the 10 first 24 rules from LawProse. And comments 11 have been made with respect to that first 12 package by Mike Hatchell, myself, and Justice 13 Guittard, but there's nothing really to report
14 with this Committee even about those first 15 10 or 12 rules.

16                   CHAIRMAN SOULES: Tell us what 17 the process is that you're about at this time
18 so that we can understand what's churning
19 behind the scenes and what we may anticipate.

20                   PROFESSOR DORSANEO: Well, Lee 21 can correct me on this, because I'm not 22 completely sure exactly how the process works
23 at the Court's level, but the Court went 24 through the Appellate Rules that this 25 Committee proposed to the Court for adoption

1 and made adjustments here and there. And then 2 the Court's draft was submitted to LawProse, 3 which is a legal writing organization headed 4 by Bryan Garner, to revise the drafts that had 5 gone through us and through the Court to put 6 them in better language.

7 I might add, you may have noted that the 8 Federal Rules of Appellate Procedure are going 9 through the same kind of process. If you 10 looked at your last United States Supreme 11 Court Reporter, you could see that they are 12 being clarified and cleaned up in the same 13 manner.

14 Bryan Garner and his staff went through 15 one package of 10 or 12 rules and made 16 stylistic changes, perhaps a few inadvertent 17 nonstylistic changes that have been 18 identified, and now have gone through the 19 first 24 rules, which really gets us into the 20 main operational rules for the first time, and 21 actually maybe not quite, and that's the 22 process.

23 Now, we, Mike Hatchell, Justice Guittard
24 and myself, are reviewing that work. We have 25 not sat down and discussed among ourselves

1 what should be done to Bryan Garner's work,
2 basically because it hasn't gotten far enough
3 along for us to get together, and I suppose it 4 probably is pretty close to that now.

5 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Lee, I
6 understand the Court either has or intends to 7 give Bryan Garner a deadline by which his work
8 must be completed. Is that right?

9 MR. PARSLEY: Yes. Bryan
10 doesn't know that yet, so I probably should 11 rush to the phone and call him so he doesn't 12 hear it secondhand. But yes, the Court is 13 going to ask that Bryan complete his work 14 before the Court takes its July break, which 15 will be somewhat faster than he has proceeded 16 so far, but that's -- the idea is that we want 17 Bryan to complete it by next July.

18 MR. HATCHELL: I talked to him
19 on the phone, and he --

20 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Speak up,
21 Mike, so we can get you.

22 MR. HATCHELL: I talked to 23 Bryan on the phone yesterday, and he 24 supposedly has a major portion sent to you as 25 of yesterday.

1 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Okay. So
2 we're still in progress on that.

3 PROFESSOR DORSANEO: Through
4 Rule 24.

5 CHAIRMAN SOULES: We've
6 received through Rule 24. And are you saying 7 more is in the mail as you're understanding 8 it, Mike?

9 MR. HATCHELL: When did you get 10 this (indicating)?

11 MR. PARSLEY: Yesterday.

12 MR. HATCHELL: So this is it?
13 This is all? Oh, this is 11 through 24.

14 CHAIRMAN SOULES: What is that?

15 MR. HATCHELL: That's 11
16 through 24.

17 CHAIRMAN SOULES: 11 through 18 24. Okay. That's the next, quote, major 19 installment. Okay.

20 MR. ORSINGER: He needs to be 21 working overtime.

22 CHAIRMAN SOULES: All right.
23 So we're still making progress, but nothing 24 back on our agenda yet for us to look at.

25 PROFESSOR DORSANEO: Now,

1 frankly from a timing standpoint the Appellate 2 Rules need to move a little more quickly. A 3 more significant concern that I have is that 4 this timetable, or even the accelerated
5 timetable, will be very slow if everything
6 goes through the same process. I mean, we'll 7 finish in about 2000.

8 JUSTICE CORNELIUS: Luke.

9 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Chief Justice
10 Cornelius.

11 JUSTICE CORNELIUS: I'd like to 12 ask Bill Dorsaneo or someone on the Appellate 13 Rules Subcommittee if the correspondence from 14 the Beaumont Court of Appeals has been 15 considered. They wrote about Rules 4(e), 16 74(a) and 91. Did you get that?

17 PROFESSOR DORSANEO: Yes. I
18 think I have, and Lee can talk about this 19 too. That's something we talked about.

20 JUSTICE CORNELIUS: They're 21 concerned about the requirement that all 22 parties to the trial court's judgment be 23 served with all papers and orders and briefs
24 and everything, even though they may not be 25 parties on appeal. And I wondered if anything

1 had been done about that.

2 MR. PARSLEY: We, the Court,
3 have seen the letter from the Beaumont Court
4 of Appeals, and we discussed it, the Court
5 discussed it in conference and is sympathetic
6 to the Beaumont Court of Appeals' problems.
7 Very sympathetic, as I remember.

8 And then the problem is, how do you take 9 care of that? And that becomes complicated
10 because then you get into what this Committee 11 already has decided, which was whether to name 12 appellees in the notice of appeal or not, 13 because if you don't name the appellees in the 14 notice of appeal and everyone is an appellee 15 once the appeal is perfected, then everyone is 16 entitled to copies. So the question is, how 17 do you narrow the number of parties in the 18 appellate court if you don't name them in the 19 notice of appeal, which is a proposal that 20 failed in this Committee.

21 And so, as I said, the Court was 22 sympathetic, and we have not, I guess,
23 substantively, the court has not concluded
24 what to do with the Beaumont Court of Appeals' 25 letter, because it would require changing what

1 I think this Committee very clearly voted 2 against, or else we haven't found another
3 solution in our discussions with the Court
4 about that. And I've discussed it with I
5 guess Judge Guittard and Bill and maybe 6 others.

7 PROFESSOR DORSANEO: And
8 Mr. Chairman, we would like to have a 9 timetable for when -- frankly, we haven't met 10 as a committee. We've just kind of dawdled 11 along here and felt no need to meet. But 12 speaking personally, I would like to know 13 something about when we're going to come to 14 closure on the Appellate Rules and perhaps 15 other things, because the movie "Ground Hog 16 Day" is more and more on my mind as we come to 17 these meetings.

18 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Well, I
19 sympathize with that and I agree. The Court, 20 as I understand it, has looked at all of these 21 Appellate Rules and sent them all to Bryan
22 Garner, right?

23 MR. PARSLEY: That's correct.

24 CHAIRMAN SOULES: That's 25 correct. So by the end of July, Garner is

1 going to be ordered, or commanded anyway, to 2 get his product back. What timetable is 3 functional for the Appellate Subcommittee,
4 then, after we get Bryan Garner's work back?

5 It's coming directly to, what, the three 6 of you?

7 PROFESSOR DORSANEO: It goes to 8 Lee.

9 CHAIRMAN SOULES: It goes to 10 Lee, and then you distribute it to Hatchell, 11 Guittard and Dorsaneo.

12 MR. PARSLEY: And you.

13 CHAIRMAN SOULES: And me. And 14 then they do whatever they do, and then, what, 15 it goes back to the Court for final approval, 16 or it comes to this Committee for final 17 approval?

18 MR. PARSLEY: The process so 19 far is somewhat informal, but it is a give and 20 take in that we received the first 10 rules 21 from Bryan Garner and I distributed them to 22 Judge Guittard, Bill Dorsaneo and Mike 23 Hatchell. I received comments back and I also 24 made comments then to Bryan Garner. Mike
25 Hatchell made some substantial comments

1 directly to Bryan Garner regarding those 2 rules, and so Bryan and LawProse will make 3 some adjustments, I think, on what they did 4 based on those comments. And so there is some 5 working back and forth, and we are checking I 6 think very carefully to make sure that what 7 comes from LawProse is substantively correct.
8 As I said, Mike Hatchell has spent a good
9 amount of time doing a rather lengthy letter 10 to LawProse with regard to what they had 11 done.

12 And so that's the process right now, is 13 to try to work with LawProse to make -- once 14 we get a draft back, to respond to that draft, 15 to suggest changes, and ultimately, it is -- 16 the Court's break at the 1st of July is when 17 they were asking LawProse to finish its work.
18 The court is going to break before the 4th of 19 July, and by then is when they would like for 20 LawProse to finish its work, and so that maybe 21 the subcommittee could meet sometime in July 22 and have a report to this Committee for this 23 Committee's July meeting. That's quick. Now, 24 whether we can get that done or not I don't 25 know, but we feel that that would be, I would

1 think, the quickest timetable we could be on 2 at this point.

3 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Well, I'm 4 hearing moans from --

5 MR. ORSINGER: That's 6 unrealistic.

7 CHAIRMAN SOULES: -- from 8 quarters nearby. Can we expect to have a 9 complete set of Appellate Rules as the Court 10 will adopt them in our hands by the 1st of 11 September? If so, then we can probably 12 reasonably deal with them in the September 13 meeting.

14 I think it's somewhat of an imposition on 15 all of you to get rules Wednesday for a Friday 16 meeting, but that's not -- that's just 17 something that has happened this time. We 18 ought to try to avoid it later. At least give 19 us a couple of weeks, particularly something 20 as massive as the Appellate Rules.

21 We're going to meet the second or third 22 weekend of September, I don't know which one 23 it is, so no later than the 1st of September 24 we would need those rules, unless we're going 25 to be in a crunch again in September.

1 PROFESSOR DORSANEO: It can be 2 done, assuming --

3 MR. ORSINGER: We meet on 4 September 20th.

5 CHAIRMAN SOULES: September
6 20th. All right.

7 PROFESSOR DORSANEO: Assuming 8 we don't have any major policy changes. If 9 the Court decides that everybody is going to 10 need to perfect an appeal by giving a notice
11 of appeal, then we have a lot of other things
12 to worry about. Okay? But if there aren't a 13 lot of other changes, and I think we can 14 digest this petition for review thing by that 15 time, if we don't get a lot of other things, 16 and if LawProse can meet that other schedule,
17 I don't see why it would take us more than a 18 week, you know, of subcommittee time to go 19 through it and get it into respectable shape 20 for presentation here.

21 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Does the 22 Court intend to work on these rules during 23 recess, the summer recess?

24 MR. PARSLEY: Yes.

25 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Okay. So if

1 Garner gets done by June 30, if they take a
2 month, that's the end of August. And if you
3 all get a month, that's the end of September,
4 if we can get through it at the September 20th 5 meeting. Okay. That's not a deadline, but 6 it's an ambitious schedule.

7 PROFESSOR DORSANEO: It's a
8 guideline.

9 CHAIRMAN SOULES: It's a
10 guideline. Justice Duncan.

11 HON. SARAH DUNCAN: I just lay
12 my bets. I'll lay my bets.

13 MR. ORSINGER: Now, Luke, the 14 Bryan Garner -- whatever these gentlemen
15 negotiate with Bryan Garner is going to come 16 back to this Committee and then go to the 17 Supreme Court?

18 CHAIRMAN SOULES: The Court
19 first, I would think.

20 MR. PARSLEY: I don't think 21 we've ever done this before.

22 CHAIRMAN SOULES: No.

23 MR. PARSLEY: So we are working
24 without a road map, but it is right now, as I 25 said, a give and take between the Court, which

1 is Judge Hecht and I mostly; Bryan Garner;
2 Mike Hatchell, Bill Dorsaneo and Judge
3 Guittard. And we all have copies and all -- 4 it's kind of all comments -- the comments are 5 all going between us all, I suppose, and so I 6 think that what will happen is that 7 ultimately, when we get Bryan Garner's final 8 report, it will already include the Court's 9 comments and Bill's comments and Mike's 10 comments and Judge Guittard's comments as part 11 of his final report, so it won't really stop
12 with the Court particularly on the way here
13 for more work from the Court.

14 The way it's going now, I think that all 15 of that will be done in the process with 16 Bryan, so that when it comes to the Court from 17 Bryan Garner as a final product, we'll pass it 18 right on through to this Committee to go to a 19 subcommittee meeting for a report here. So I
20 anticipate the final report from Bryan Garner 21 won't need to stop with the Court for any 22 reason.

23 CHAIRMAN SOULES: How massive 24 are the changes?

25 MR. PARSLEY: Well...

1                   CHAIRMAN SOULES:  Are we going 2                   to just see, if we get a red-lined version, is 3                   it going to be everything is out, all new in, 4                   in different words or what?

5                   MR. PARSLEY:  The changes will 6                   be --

7                   CHAIRMAN SOULES:  That's what 8                   we're going to see?  That's what I figured.

9                   MR. PARSLEY:  The changes will 10                  be significant, but I hope the Committee is 11                  not disheartened but is heartened by this 12                  project, because I believe that the Appellate 13                  Rules, when it goes through this project, will 14                  be better, more understandable.  The 15                  substantive law will be changed only in places 16                  where this Committee wanted the substantive 17                  law or the Court wanted the substantive law
18                  changed, and I can't guarantee that, but I 19                  really would like for the Committee to have 20                  some faith that this process is not the end of 21                  the world.

22                  I mean, we are fairly careful, I think, 23                  in trying to communicate among people who are 24                  experienced in appellate law to make sure that 25                  the product that comes from LawProse and comes

1 back to the Court, although there will be 2 quite a bit of change in language, is not 3 going to change appellate procedure in Texas 4 except where we want it to.

5 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Let me ask a
6 specific question then. How helpful would a 7 red-lined version be, red-lining what we get 8 next time against what we sent to the Court?

9 MR. PARSLEY: I can do that,
10 will do that, and if -- I --

11 CHAIRMAN SOULES: No, my 12 question is how helpful. Is it going to be so 13 radically different that it's really not going 14 to be helpful?

15 PROFESSOR DORSANEO: Bryan has 16 almost prepared -- it is kind of -- it's a
17 substitute for a red-line. It's a 18 side-by-side comparison. If anybody looked at 19 the Supreme Court Reporter, they can see 20 exactly how the Federal Rules of Appellate 21 Procedure are being redesigned. You can 22 identify the change. This is the equivalent 23 of, if not better than, a red-line.

24 CHAIRMAN SOULES: If anybody
25 hasn't seen this, I'm going to pass this all

1 the way around the room so you can get an idea 2 of what's happening (indicating).

3 MR. ORSINGER: Luke, if can I
4 ask a question.

5 CHAIRMAN SOULES: If we could 6 just pass this around just quickly to take a 7 look at it.

8 MR. ORSINGER: It would be 9 helpful to me if we could provide some kind of 10 summary of what the Supreme Court has done
11 with our original proposal. The way I'm 12 looking at this is that Bryan Garner isn't 13 changing the substance of anything unless he 14 does it accidentally, but the Supreme Court 15 may have changed the substance of a lot of 16 things.

17 The only thing I know of that the Supreme 18 Court has substantively changed is our 19 recommendation to eliminate writ of error
20 appeals to the court of the appeals; I know 21 now or I see now that they're probably going 22 to on their own in this petition for review.
23 If we could get an outline, maybe even just 24 two pages long, of the substantive changes
25 that the Supreme Court has made, then it can

1 be percolating in our heads right now of what 2 our reaction is going to be and what kind of 3 consequential changes need to be made to our 4 original proposal.

5 MR. PARSLEY: We can. I have 6 on my computer both clean and red-line copies 7 of what the Supreme Court has done. The 8 red-lining is against the current rules, not 9 against what this Committee submitted. I can 10 go back through and red-line against what this 11 Committee submitted, and will do that, if 12 that's what you all would like. If you would 13 prefer red-lining against and I distribute 14 red-lining against the current rules, I can do 15 that. I'll do what the Committee wants in 16 regards to distributing it and when.

17 And always I have provided copies of 18 these things freely to anybody who calls me 19 and asks and will continue to do that. It's 20 just that in our trying to work through them 21 it is a little more helpful to have a set 22 group that I can distribute to regularly and 23 get comments from regularly, as opposed to 24 having a mailing list of 30 people and I spend 25 all my time mailing stuff out and very little

1 time doing anything substantively. We've 2 tried to narrow it a little bit, but I'm happy 3 to provide anybody copies of any of this at 4 any time, if you will call me, and I will 5 prepare, if the Chairman would like for me to, 6 a red-lined version. In fact I can do the 7 red-lined version for tomorrow. I will go to 8 the office and copy it tonight and then hand 9 it out, if that's what you all would like.

10 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Well, let me
11 ask you this: Is the Court working from the 12 current rules to new rules, or working from 13 what we sent in to new rules?

14 MR. PARSLEY: Working from what 15 this Committee sent in to new rules.

16 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Okay.

17 MR. PARSLEY: It's just that 18 the red-lining, you know, is done against the 19 rules. But the Court took what this Committee 20 sent as the basis from which the Court has 21 worked.

22 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Okay. Well,
23 I think what I'm hearing here is that our 24 Committee wants to be staged to react to and 25 assist the Court with the Appellate Rules by

1 doing some homework before we get into 2 Committee session so that we can be more 3 productive in Committee session. A couple of 4 ways, a couple of things might help us. It
5 may be premature to -- well, has the Court
6 finished its work on the Appellate Rules?

7 MR. PARSLEY: Well, not -- I'd 8 like to say we've finished, but the Beaumont
9 Court of Appeals wrote its letter kind of late 10 in the process and has identified a problem, 11 and so the Court -- that's percolating at the 12 Court. I don't know what the answer is, but 13 that is there. These petitions for review 14 rules have been percolating at the Court for 15 several months, and we haven't really declared 16 that finished either, so there are some issues 17 there that the Court has not decided how to 18 handle them.

19 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Other than 20 those two issues, do you know of any other 21 open issues?

22 MR. PARSLEY: No.

23 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Okay.

24 MR. PARSLEY: Not anything of 25 substance.

1 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Okay. Mike.

2 MR. HATCHELL: If I can make a
3 suggestion, I think that Richard Orsinger's 4 original request that Lee prepare a summary of 5 how the Supreme Court changed our package
6 would be a lot more useful than a red-lined
7 version, because I've seen Lee's red-lined 8 versions and they're really -- it really gets 9 to be confusing. It's not Lee's fault. It 10 just is.

11 The other comment, Luke, if you remember, 12 we didn't work on every appellate rule. But 13 Bryan Garner, he is editing every appellate 14 rule. And Bill Dorsaneo is correct, what he 15 gives us, a side-by-side comparison, is much 16 better than a red-line.

17 So what I would like to see is Lee do a 18 summary of changes to our package and then 19 everybody get the side-by-side comparison, and 20 I think that will be much easier.

21 CHAIRMAN SOULES: If you -- if 22 it's -- I know how burdened you are because 23 you don't have any help, Lee, but if you will 24 instruct me to distribute copies to the 25 membership of something you want distributed,

1 we'll do that in my office. You've been doing 2 a lot of that out of your office, which is 3 helpful from time to time because it doesn't 4 have to go to San Antonio and get through 5 there. But when we're not tight on time, 6 we'll be happy to take care of the duplication 7 and mailing and get that off of your plate.
8 So why don't -- but just remind me so that I
9 know that I'm sending it to everybody.

10 But we should send to everybody, I guess,
11 every increment of the Bryan Garner work 12 product that comes out so that everybody gets 13 that, Bill?

14 PROFESSOR DORSANEO: Yeah.

15 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Or do we wait
16 for you all to act and then send it out? I 17 mean, the committee of three is going through 18 and spot checking for where Garner accidentally,
19 to use Richard's words, makes a substantive
20 change.

21 MR. HATCHELL: That's correct,
22 Luke. Just bear in mind that that's also the 23 first time that we have ever seen some of 24 these changes, because as I said, these are 25 rules that neither this Committee nor the 1           subcommittee has ever worked on.

2           The problem that I have about
3           distributing Bryan's work piecemeal is, Lee, I 4           don't know what happens to our comments when 5           we make them. I mean, I'm only commenting on 6           LawProse's drafts. I don't know what happens 7           to those comments.

8                           CHAIRMAN SOULES: What does 9           happen to them, Lee?

10                           MR. PARSLEY: They go to 11           LawProse. In my conversation with Bryan last 12           week, he had your comments, said that your 13           comments were accurate, and he needed to 14           incorporate them. And so I assume that was 15           only on the first 10 appellate rules, and I 16           assume we will get a subsequent draft out of 17           LawProse on the first 10 appellate rules that 18           incorporate Mike Hatchell's comments, so it 19           all sort of clears through me, and maybe 20           that's an inefficient way to do it, but I try 21           to keep the three people that we've been 22           working with here and Bryan Garner and Judge 23           Hecht, all of us, with everything mailed, but 24           maybe I'm not as efficient as I ought to be in 25           terms of getting the mail out sometimes, but

1 other than that, it all goes out to where it's 2 supposed to go.

3 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Well, I think
4 the timetable needs to be changed, then,
5 because we get into a new factor that I 6 haven't focused on. We need Bryan Garner to 7 work by the end of June. We need Bryan
8 Garner's revised and final, the last we're 9 going to hear from LawProse, by the end of 10 June -- July.

11 PROFESSOR DORSANEO: July.

12 CHAIRMAN SOULES: By the end of 13 July. So we're going to get what he does and 14 thinks he does right by the end of June, and 15 then Mike and Bill and whoever else wants to, 16 maybe we need some more people, to go through 17 there and look for these accidents and try to 18 fix them, and get Bryan to quickly react to 19 fixing the accidents that he had and then get 20 back to us with the last word from them by the 21 end of July. Okay? And then you all take one 22 more pass at it and get it to us by the end of 23 August.

24 That's what we need to do, because what 25 you're getting from Bryan is what sounds to me

1           like -- what the Court really expects to get 2           from Bryan by the end of June is going to 3           include all these accidents, and that's got to 4           be cleaned up first before this Committee 5           should be involved as a whole, because we've 6           got this talent that's going through and 7           finding these problems.

8           Okay. Then what we need to do is 9           distribute to the Committee as a whole what we 10          get back from Garner at the end of July and 11          probably nothing before, because it's going to 12          be full of accidents and everybody is going to 13          be worrying about those accidents that a few 14          people are already fixing, so let's get those 15          accidents fixed by the few before we 16          distribute it to everybody, unless somebody 17          wants to -- and anybody that wants to be on 18          this --

19                   HON. SARAH DUNCAN: -- accident
20          reconstruction team?

21                   CHAIRMAN SOULES: -- accident
22          reconstruction team, yeah. They need help.
23          We need help, so who wants to help?

24                   MR. ORSINGER: I'll help.

25                   CHAIRMAN SOULES: Richard will

1 help. Sarah will help.

2 MR. ORSINGER: Elaine's hand is 3 up.

4 HON. SARAH DUNCAN: Elaine's
5 hand is up.

6 CHAIRMAN SOULES: David Keltner
7 will help, and Elaine will help. Okay. So 8 Bill, do you have those people?

9 MR. PARSLEY: Got 'em.

10 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Lee has got 11 it.

12 MR. ORSINGER: Now, Luke, that 13 means he's going to do about 120 rules in 14 45 days when he's done the first 20 rules in 15 three months?

16 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Yeah. Fat
17 chance, but we'll see.

18 MR. PARSLEY: Well, he may have 19 another big packet on the way. We're hopeful 20 maybe that's it. According to Mike, there's 21 something else in the mail.

22 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Okay. Does
23 everybody agree with that timetable? That's 24 about as fast as we can hope to have them 25 done, and then if we do, we can get them to 1           them in January.

2                   Does anybody need anything before we get 3 to the last of the LawProse revised project?

4                           MR. ORSINGER: I would like to 5 go back to my suggestion of a short summary of 6 the Supreme Court implemented --

7                           CHAIRMAN SOULES: Well, I'm 8 trying to take this one at a time.

9                           MR. ORSINGER: Oh, I thought 10 that was included in this.

11                           CHAIRMAN SOULES: That wasn't 12 responsive, but my question was too narrow.

13                           Okay. That's what we're going to do with 14 LawProse.

15                           Okay. Now, Lee and Bill, we would like 16 to have a memorandum of policy differences 17 between what the Supreme Court is sending to 18 Garner and what we sent to the Supreme Court.
19 That's part (a) of what we need.

20                           Part (b) of what we need is an 21 identification of the still-open issues which 22 the Supreme Court is considering so that we 23 kind of get an orientation of what's going 24 on. And in a week, 10 days, two weeks, 25 something like that, wherever you can fit it

1 in, if you can get that to me. Instead of 2 sending it to everybody, send it to me, and 3 I'll get it to everybody. That's what you
4 want, Richard, right?

5 MR. ORSINGER: Yes, it is.

6 CHAIRMAN SOULES: And I think
7 we all want that. Justice Duncan.

8 HON. SARAH DUNCAN: Luke, when 9 are you talking about that?

10 MR. ORSINGER: A week or two.

11 CHAIRMAN SOULES: 10 days, two 12 weeks, something like that. Lee has got so 13 much on his plate. He's going to have to do 14 this summary, and I don't want him to feel 15 like he's got to do more than he can possibly 16 manage, but I know, given his efficiency, 17 we're going to get it as soon as we can.

18 A couple of weeks would give you time to 19 fit it in, do you think?

20 MR. PARSLEY: Yes.

21 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Okay. Will 22 that work for you, Justice Duncan, within a 23 couple of weeks?

24 HON. SARAH DUNCAN: Sure. I
25 just have a paper due and I was wondering how

1 much of this I was going to be able to include
2 in it, and I apologize.

3 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Well, as I
4 understand it, they've decided to preserve 5 writ of error, so that doesn't -- unless 6 they've changed it. And they're struggling 7 with whether everybody has got to perfect an 8 appeal or how they're going to deal with that 9 in light of the --

10 HON. SARAH DUNCAN: We've gone
11 through and identified what we've noticed as 12 the significant changes. I was just being 13 greedy. Sorry.

14 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Just try to 15 be helpful, if you want to be.

16 Anything else now on the Appellate Rules?
17 Any other questions about where they are? Any 18 other suggestions on how we can better build 19 efficiency into the process and accuracy, 20 anything?

21 Do you have any other requests, Bill, 22 from us?

23 PROFESSOR DORSANEO: You're 24 going to do this petition for review, right?

25 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Not until

1 Justice Hecht gets here to tell us what our 2 charge is. I don't know whether this is a 3 fait accompli, they're going to do this, they 4 just want our help in implementing it, or 5 whether they want us to comment on whether 6 they should do it. And I think we probably 7 need to know that, because we could debate
8 maybe all day on one of those questions and it 9 may be a closed issue.

10 Okay. Appellate Rules, and thank you all 11 very much. Let's take a short break here of 12 about 10 minutes until 10:40.

13 (At this time there was a 14 recess.)

15 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Don Hunt, do 16 you have a full grasp of plenary power now to 17 share with us?

18 MR. HUNT: Yes, I do.

19 CHAIRMAN SOULES: All right.
20 Then let's find out about it. The next item 21 pending on our agenda pending the arrival of 22 our liaison member will be Don Hunt's report.

23 Don, do you have some new papers for us?

24 MR. HUNT: Mr. Chairman, there
25 are three new papers for you.

1 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Okay. Are 2 they all up here?

3 MR. HUNT: Yes.

4 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Has everyone
5 picked up a new paper?

6 MR. HUNT: The first is a
7 red-lined version with a little bit fancier 8 cover. Then there is a clear version, which 9 is the same as the red-lined except for the 10 red-lines, of course; and then the inquiry 11 disposition chart, which is only two or three 12 pages and is reasonably short.

13 My hope is that we can march through 14 these with dispatch and spend the only 15 deliberative time in connection with Rule 305,
16 the plenary power rule, which this Committee 17 requested us to redraft slightly and continue 18 our work.

19 The other changes that have been made
20 since last time have all been shown by boxes 21 which appear in the red-lined version, and my 22 hope is that we can march through these box by 23 box and get to Rule 305, because until we get 24 for to Rule 305 there's not much in 25 controversy.

1           There are a couple of suggestions that 2 are made in here that have come primarily from 3 Justice Guittard about changes, because we may 4 have made a mistake or two as we were going 5 through the first time, a comment or two 6 that's required by recent cases.

7           But with those general comments in mind, 8 Mr. Chairman, let me direct the attention of 9 the Committee to the red-lined version, and 10 going just box to box turn to the first box on 11 page 2, which deals with Rule 297(c).

12           Rule 297(c) was the rule that dealt with 13 the form of the findings of fact. That's that 14 new rule we voted to tinker a little with on 15 the language. The tinkering has been done, 16 and the only purpose for even calling it to 17 your attention is to be certain that the 18 present version is faithful to the drafting we 19 did last time.

20                   CHAIRMAN SOULES: Does
21 everybody agree with the rewrite of 297(c)?
22 Does anyone disagree? There's no
23 disagreement. It passes unanimously.

24                   MR. HUNT: The next one is on 25 Page 3. It deals with Rule 299(b) on presumed

1 findings. Stephen Yelenosky suggested a
2 grammar change. That's been made. I can't 3 even find the old version of this, but he did 4 improve the language slightly to make it clear 5 that it is the finding that is presumed and 6 not the request that is presumed. Unless 7 there is some problem there, I ask that that 8 be approved too.

9 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Okay. Does
10 everyone agree, then, with the rewrite on 11 299(b)? Does anyone disagree? Richard.

12 MR. ORSINGER: Let me make a
13 comment. I just realized for the first time
14 that our deemed finding rule under the jury 15 part, which we just got through looking at, 16 permits a deemed finding when the evidence is 17 both legally and factually sufficient. This 18 language permits a deemed finding in nonjury 19 cases when supported by factually sufficient.
20 "Factually sufficient" probably tacitly 21 includes legally sufficient. The language is 22 not parallel, but the concepts are probably 23 parallel.

24 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Does anyone
25 disagree with 299(b) as written by the

1 committee? No disagreement. It passes
2 unanimously.

3 MR. HUNT: The next is on 4 page 4. This is in the definition of final 5 judgment. We have made no changes to it
6 except to add the language on Rule 300(b)(3), 7 the very last language, the "except" language.
8 I think this is language suggested by Rusty 9 McMains and drafted by Judge Guittard. It's 10 clarifying only.

12 everyone agree with the rewrite on 300(b)(3)?
13 Does anyone disagree? No disagreement. It 14 passes unanimously.

15 MR. HUNT: The next change is 16 on Page 5. It also deals with Rule 300, it's 17 Rule 300(c), the form of the final judgment.
18 If you recall last time, if you will look at 19 the top of Page 5, we changed slightly the 20 language in subparagraph (3). We reduced it 21 to where it originally talked about relief and 22 for and against and that kind of thing, we 23 reduced it just to "dispose of all parties and 24 claims."

25 While we were taking that action in

1 subcommittee, the Amarillo Court of Appeals 2 was writing an opinion that said that what we 3 did was not final judgment. While this is an 4 unpublished opinion, it came into my hands, 5 and I sent a copy of it to Judge Guittard, and 6 what's expressed there in the box is about the 7 whole of the opinion, and the whole of the 8 trial court's judgment.

9 The trial court's judgment just simply 10 said one side's motion for summary judgment is 11 granted; the other side's motion for summary
12 judgment is denied. That disposed of all 13 claims and all parties. Amarillo said that 14 wasn't a final judgment because you could not 15 read that judgment and know what had 16 happened. It's possible to go back and read 17 the transcript and look through the motions
18 and see what must have been at issue, but this 19 points out the problem that we've talked about 20 here when we talked about finality.

21 You need finality for the purpose of 22 being able to execute on something. In order 23 to be able to execute, you need to be able to 24 know what has been ordered one way or the 25 other, or you need to know what relief has

1           been granted or denied. And that was the 2           reason why at Justice Guittard's suggestion 3           and because of this case I have gone back to 4           some slightly different language that we had 5           in before, and that's expressed in 6           Alternative 2. And it's more like the current 7           rule anyway.

8                           CHAIRMAN SOULES: What makes 9           the Amarillo court right?

10                           MR. HUNT: Because it was 11           impossible to read that final judgment and 12           know what one could do under the judgment.
13           All one knew was that a motion had been 14           granted and a motion had been denied.

15                           CHAIRMAN SOULES: Justice
16           Duncan.

17                           HON. SARAH DUNCAN: Well, I
18           question whether that would make it nonfinal 19           as opposed to erroneous or not capable of 20           execution. But it seems to me that we're 21           going to cause a lot of judgments to not be 22           final if we make this Alternative 2 part of 23           the rule with express reference in documents
24           generated by this Committee to the Amarillo 25           case.

1                   CHAIRMAN SOULES: I didn't hear 2 the last part.

3                   HON. SARAH DUNCAN: With 4 documents generated by this Committee and 5 reviewed by this Committee and discussions
6 within this Committee to the Amarillo opinion
7 in Burleson vs. City of Houston.

8                   CHAIRMAN SOULES: Judge
9 Guittard.

10                  HON. C. A. GUITTARD: Mr.
11 Chairman, this rule does not define final 12 judgment in form and substance generally. It 13 just says what should go into a judgment.
14 There may be some difference between what 15 should go into a judgment and what makes a 16 judgment final. This language in the 17 Alternative 2, state the relief, either in law 18 or in equity, granted or denied, to or against 19 each party, is nothing new. In fact, it's a 20 paraphrase of the present rule. And I see no 21 reason why it should not be in there. I think 22 we would make a mistake by saying, by omitting 23 the provision that the judgment should state 24 what relief is granted.

25                  CHAIRMAN SOULES: Justice

1 Duncan.

2 HON. SARAH DUNCAN: And I
3 certainly don't disagree with that in concept 4 if it's clear within the Committee that we are 5 not saying that that is a necessary
6 requirement for finality. What concerns me is 7 that we were considering a document that says, 8 and I quote, "Without a requirement that a 9 judgment state that the relief given to each 10 party, the judgment is not final pursuant to 11 such cases as Burleson vs. City of Houston," 12 which appears to me to codify that holding.
13 At least that appears, that sort of looks like 14 it's the intent of the Committee. But I'm not 15 disagreeing with what Judge Guittard says.

17 Dorsaneo.

18 PROFESSOR DORSANEO: Well, I
19 don't want to revisit this, but I like the 20 description including (3), but I don't like 21 the "and Substance" part of the title or the 22 word "final" before "judgment." We have a 23 separate paragraph on final judgment and that 24 seems to be adequate in and of itself. Do we 25 need to talk about final judgment in the next

1 paragraph?

2 If you go down to -- maybe I don't mind
3 the "and Substance," but if you go to "Form
4 and Substance: Specific," it says, "Personal 5 Property. A judgment for personal property."
6 We don't say there "a final judgment." So my 7 specific point is why don't we take the word 8 "final" out of the first line in (c).

9 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Any objection
10 to that? Any discussion of that? The word 11 "final" in the first sentence of 300(c) is 12 stricken. It now reads "(c) Form and 13 Substance: General. The final judgment
14 shall:" It will read "(c) Form and Substance: 15 General. The judgment shall:" That passes
16 unanimously.

17 PROFESSOR DORSANEO: The only 18 other thing I would say is you could say "a 19 judgment" to make it completely parallel.

20 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Any objection
21 to that? It will read "a judgment" instead of 22 "the judgment." It's unanimous. Unanimous 23 consent on that. It will say, "(c) Form and 24 Substance: General. A judgment shall:" and so 25 forth.

1 PROFESSOR DORSANEO: And I move
2 the elimination of this reference to Burleson
3 vs. City of Houston. I haven't read it, and I 4 don't want to embrace it if it means more than 5 what the Committee has proposed.

6 CHAIRMAN SOULES: I think 7 that's just --

8 HON. C. A. GUITTARD: It's just 9 an explanation.

10 CHAIRMAN SOULES: -- that's 11 just assistance for the Committee. That's not 12 being published anywhere other than outside of 13 this, is that correct?

14 HON. C. A. GUITTARD: That's 15 correct.

16 MR. HUNT: That's correct.

17 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Okay. So
18 we've got (c)(1) is okay; (2) is okay. Which 19 (3)?

20 MR. HUNT: Yes, which (3).
21 That's all we're concerned with here.

22 CHAIRMAN SOULES: You
23 recommend, the committee recommends
24 Alternative 2, is that correct?

25 MR. HUNT: That's correct.

1 CHAIRMAN SOULES: It doesn't
2 need a second. Any discussion? Those in 3 favor of show by hands. Those opposed.

4 13 to two it passes.

5 MR. HUNT: The next question
6 arises from page 7. This is in connection
7 with the motions before and after judgment, 8 Rule 301. Turn if you would to 301(b)(2) on 9 page 7. The box identifies the "unless"
10 language which has been slightly edited. That 11 was edited because the way it was expressed 12 previously was not crystal clear in my 13 judgment, so I talked with Bill Dorsaneo, and 14 this language seemed to make clear what was 15 the purpose of the "unless" clause, simply to 16 say that where a charge expresses the law and 17 both parties fail to object to the expression 18 of the law in the charge, that becomes the 19 controlling law in that you can't later 20 complain about the charge not expressing the 21 controlling law.

22 Does anyone have any problem with that 23 slight rewording in (b)(2) and the inclusion 24 of the "unless" language in (c)(2)? The 25 inclusion in (c)(2) is only for the purpose of 1 making them parallel.

2 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Does
3 everybody agree, then, to the rewrite of 4 300(b)(2) and 300(c)(2) as shown on page 7?

5 MS. SWEENEY: I'm sorry, I
6 have --

7 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Paula
8 Sweeney.

9 MS. SWEENEY: I'm trying to be 10 sure that this in some way dovetails with what 11 we just did with the Charge Rules, and this is 12 the first time I've ever seen this, so I don't 13 have any idea. Have you all given some 14 thought to that, and can you talk about that 15 with what we just did?

16 CHAIRMAN SOULES: I don't think 17 it's affected by that, is it, Richard?

18 MR. ORSINGER: In my view,
19 Paula, it's not a problem, because we don't 20 say how they preserve it, for example, by 21 requesting or whatever, and under the Charge
22 Rules they preserve it by objecting.

23 MS. SWEENEY: But does the 24 objection -- this says that the court's charge
25 fails to express controlling law. Is this a

1 more specific requirement than what we just 2 put in the Charge Rules? Is it a less
3 specific requirement? Is it the same 4 requirement for what the objection should 5 state?

6 MR. HUNT: In my judgment,
7 Paula, it doesn't touch how one preserves. It 8 just simply says if there is a failure to 9 preserve, it's to eliminate those who lie 10 behind the log when the charge expressly 11 spells out what the law is that applies to 12 this case that's about to be submitted to the 13 jury. If both parties remain silent, they 14 can't come in later at the motion stage and 15 say, "This charge was wrong"; that where it 16 spells out the definition of negligence, the 17 definition is just flat wrong of what 18 negligence is. You can't complain later on 19 that the charge didn't properly define 20 negligence when the trial court and both 21 counsel let it go. There's got to be 22 something done at the preservation of error 23 stage. You can't do that kind of error at the 24 motion stage. That's what it all means.

25 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Okay. Any

1 other questions? Rusty.

2 MS. SWEENEY: So potentially 3 there are different standards at the motion
4 stage? You don't think so?

5 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Rusty.

6 MR. McMains: The only question
7 I have, I suppose, is -- I mean, Allen is a 8 very specific application of a problem in that 9 there was basically a burden assumed and 10 otherwise arguably not required to be assumed 11 of something that was in the charge. Of 12 course, we have different rules of when 13 something was not in the charge, letting the 14 trial judge make the addition. And we also 15 have -- that's in our -- it used to be in 279, 16 whatever our numbers are now, that you have 17 deemed findings, waived grounds type 18 arguments. And I guess what this is is an 19 attempt to basically say in general that you 20 waive the application of controlling law if 21 you don't make an objection?

22 CHAIRMAN SOULES: That's what
23 it says.

24 MR. McMains: Whereas,
25 historically when we say that no-evidence

1 objections can be made for the first time
2 after verdict and there's not anything in the 3 charge specifically that would indicate that 4 the parties have agreed that the law is a 5 certain way, is this an attempt to basically 6 repudiate the notion that you can preserve the 7 claim that this is not a legally cognizable 8 claim by NOV, which we have always been able 9 to do in spite of Allen?

10 I mean, Allen does not hold that you
11 can't make a no-evidence complaint, a no-duty 12 complaint, those types of things, without 13 having to make any objection to the charge or 14 any kind of preverdict motion. I'm a little 15 bit unclear. I guess what I'm saying is I 16 think this does more than Allen does, because 17 Allen is a situation where the parties
18 basically submit something agreeing that this 19 is going to control the outcome of the case.
20 That's the basis for Allen, whereas -- yeah, 21 but it's not a holding that they waive. It's 22 not actually -- Allen doesn't hold that they 23 waive the law per se. It just says that 24 they -- as you point out, that they sandbag 25 the court and say, "This is the controlling

1 issue in the case, and way it was submitted
2 was we're going to determine the evidence 3 based on that."

4 But I think if you've got, for instance,
5 a legitimate no-duty argument, I mean, nobody 6 is going to complain about the submission of 7 negligence under the PJC. I mean, why should 8 you have to complain about no duty in a 9 negligence submission? I think people will be 10 using this to argue that you can't argue no 11 duty unless you've made that argument in the 12 charge.

14 Dorsaneo.

15 PROFESSOR DORSANEO: Well, I
16 think I'm understanding what you're saying,
17 and the language that I find perhaps a little 18 bit overbroad beyond Allen is the "fails to 19 express" rather than saying something like 20 "inaccurately expresses." I think Allen is 21 an affirmative misstatement.

22 MR. McMANS: Correct.

23 PROFESSOR DORSANEO: Because it
24 adds "should have known" to "knew." That is 25 frankly a little more narrow than this, and I

1 would suggest that the Committee speak about 2 "inaccurately states controlling law" rather 3 than "fails to express," which --

4 MR. HUNT: That's a good
5 change, Mr. Chairman. I would move to change 6 the language to read, "unless the movant 7 waived the application of controlling law by 8 failing to preserve a complaint that the 9 court's charge inaccurately expresses 10 controlling law."

11 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Rusty, does 12 that get at your issue?

13 PROFESSOR DORSANEO: How about 14 "affirmatively misstates," because 15 "inaccurately expressing" could be leaving 16 something out.

17 MR. ORSINGER: Why does it need
18 to be affirmative? Why can't it just misstate
19 it?

20 PROFESSOR DORSANEO: I'm trying 21 to align it as closely as I can to Allen.

22 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Yeah. Well,
23 I think that's important.

24 MR. HUNT: I will admit that 25 affirmatively misstates is --

1 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Affirmatively
2 misstates --

3 MR. HUNT: "Affirmatively
4 misstates the controlling law," substitute
5 that for "fails to express."

6 CHAIRMAN SOULES: In both 7 places?

8 MR. HUNT: In both places.

9 CHAIRMAN SOULES: So in 10 300(b)(2), the last line, and in 300(c)(2), 11 the words "fails to express" will be deleted 12 and the words substituted in their place 13 "affirmatively misstates."

14 MR. KELTNER: Luke, I think 15 we're talking about 301, are we not, not 300?

16 MR. HUNT: Yes, 301.

17 CHAIRMAN SOULES: 301. I'm 18 sorry, 301(b)(2) and 301(c)(2), those changes 19 that I just mentioned.

20 Richard Orsinger.

21 MR. ORSINGER: I would express
22 some concern about the use of the words
23 "affirmatively misstating," because to me,
24 the difference between affirmatively
25 misstating and misstating it not affirmatively

1 is to make a statement that's wrong versus 2 making a statement that omits something that's 3 right. And if you charge a jury on, say, some 4 law but you leave out one element of the 5 recovery and the party has waived the right to 6 complain about that omission, I think they 7 should be bound by that statement of the law.

8 To use the word "affirmatively" means
9 that if I leave out something, this rule 10 doesn't apply, but if I put in the wrong word, 11 this rule does apply. And I'm troubled by 12 that distinction, because if you have a duty 13 to object to the omission of some concept and 14 you don't, I think you're bound by the charge, 15 even if it was something that was dropped out 16 rather than something that was said wrong.

17 PROFESSOR DORSANEO: But 18 normally the omission will be dealt with by 19 Rule 299 -- 279. And that's the difference 20 between something that's defective and 21 something that's omitted, you know, which is 22 you're dancing around with yourself after -- 23 once you get to the really hard cases. But 24 the omitted stuff is going to be dealt with by 25 Rule 279 in one way or another.

1                   MR. ORSINGER: But aren't you
2 preempting 279 in this rule by permitting
3 someone to move for a judgment on the ground 4 that something was omitted when they've 5 actually waived the right to complain that it
6 was omitted? Isn't that what this rule says, 7 that even if I have waived the right to 8 complain from the omission in the charge, I 9 can come along in a postverdict motion and 10 complain that it was omitted and I'm home 11 free, even though I've had my free shot at the 12 jury and I've lost?

13                   It seems to me that whether I'm bound to 14 the jury charge because it affirmatively
15 misstates or I'm bound because it omits
16 something, then either way I ought to be 17 bound. I shouldn't have an after shot.

18                   PROFESSOR DORSANEO: I disagree
19 with that. I think it's much harder to see 20 something that's missing than it is to see 21 something that's affirmatively misstated, and 22 if we're going to impose any threshold duty, 23 it should be on the affirmative misstatement, 24 and the deemed finding rule is about things 25 that nobody remembered to put in there, and 1 that's how our system has dealt with that.

2 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Rusty.

3 MR. McMAINS: I just want to 4 second that statement by Bill, because that is 5 what deemed findings are, is when you are 6 talking about an omitted element of a ground
7 of recovery or defense that is otherwise
8 submitted, you're not bound by the jury's
9 determination of the incomplete issue, you 10 are -- and otherwise have waived your right to 11 trial by jury if no one has complained about 12 it. But the judge by virtue of his judgment 13 makes the determination, and he can do it by 14 either making an affirmative finding or he can 15 do it by simply entering a judgment for 16 whichever party he wants to win on that issue 17 and then determine it on that basis.

18 CHAIRMAN SOULES: But aren't 19 you all saying the same thing conversely, you 20 all and Richard? What Richard is saying is 21 that you have to complain about an omitted 22 element to keep it from being deemed.

23 MR. McMAINS: No, no, no. What 24 Richard is suggesting is that you should be 25 bound; that is, in other words, if you've

1 omitted something, that you're stuck with the 2 jury's answer regardless of what their answer
3 is. The deemed findings rule merely says you
4 waive the right to try it to the jury. You 5 haven't waived the right to challenge the 6 judgment --

7 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Okay.

8 MR. McMains: -- on the 9 determination. There's a big difference. I
10 mean, you still have the right. Like if you
11 submit a standard negligence/proximate cause 12 case and leave out proximate cause, under what 13 Richard wants is he wants to be able to say,
14 well, it's obviously defective, and if you 15 didn't complain on the omission of proximate 16 cause, then you're not entitled to move for 17 judgment, even if you've got -- I mean, you're 18 not entitled to move for judgment or oppose 19 the entry of judgment on that issue.

20 And that's exactly what our deemed 21 findings rule does allow. You can say there's 22 no evidence of proximate cause and ask the 23 judge, or that the evidence supports a finding 24 of no proximate cause, and the judge can make 25 a judgment either way because you've waived

1 the right to try that issue to the jury by the 2 omission.

3 MR. ORSINGER: To me this rule
4 doesn't impact that at all, because what Rusty 5 is talking about is when there is some 6 evidence in the record and the trial court
7 makes the finding. This rule is talking about 8 winning as a matter of law without regard to 9 what the evidence is. This is a motion to get 10 a judgment as a matter of law without regard 11 to the evidence, and I don't think that what 12 I'm proposing about this rule affects deemed 13 findings at all, because you're not entitled 14 to judgment as a matter of law if there's 15 factually sufficient evidence to support a 16 deemed finding, so to me, my proposal doesn't 17 step on Rusty's toes at all.

18 CHAIRMAN SOULES: That's what
19 I'm sensing. Really what are we saying here?
20 You can move for judgment as a matter of law 21 if the controlling law is determinative of the 22 claim or the defense, unless you didn't make a 23 complaint. And if you didn't make a 24 complaint, yeah, unless you waive that 25 controlling law by failing to make a

1 complaint. So the judge says this is the 2 controlling law in the instruction and these 3 are the elements, and you don't complain.
4 Then what? There are so many negatives in 5 here I'm having trouble getting through the 6 logic of it.

7 MR. McMANS: Well, I
8 understand that this is an amendment to 9 Rule 301, but historically we've always been 10 able to make 301 motions after the evidence, 11 after the verdict, on a no-evidence ground,
12 which would include a lot of legal grounds. I 13 mean, the notion of no evidence has included a 14 number of "you're not entitled to judgment as 15 a matter of law." A lot of no-duty stuff has 16 been incorporated into that.

17 And you can't say that you can't move
18 for -- you can't say in one part of the Charge
19 Rules that says you can make a no-evidence 20 complaint after verdict and then put this in 21 here which suggests that you have to make some 22 kind of a complaint about duty or whatever in 23 order to preserve the complaint. I mean, that 24 to me is inconsistent.

25 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Alex

1           Albright.

2                           PROFESSOR ALBRIGHT: I think
3 what Rusty is saying is let's don't include 4 the "unless" clause. And I think the "unless"
5 clause, that whole "unless" clause would be a 6 big mistake, because just sitting here we 7 can't figure out what it means and we are 8 concerned that it may mean more than it's 9 supposed to mean, and I'm not sure it's 10 right.

11                   I am not familiar directly with this 12 Allen vs. American National Insurance Company
13 case, so I don't know if this says what that 14 case says or not, but it seems to me that we 15 cannot write these rules where we're going to 16 codify every single opinion that the Supreme 17 Court has ever written.

18                   We have a general rule here. There is a 19 Supreme Court opinion that, from what I hear, 20 dealt with a pretty specific situation that 21 does not occur very often, and it seems like 22 that case should take care of that specific 23 situation. And if we try to write it in the 24 rule, then what we're doing, what Rusty and I 25 are concerned about, is we are dealing with

1 more issues and more situations than that 2 opinion was intended to encompass, so I think 3 it creates more problems than it solves.

4 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Justice
5 Duncan, you had your hand up. Any comment.

6 HON. SARAH DUNCAN: Well, I was 7 thinking about fraud, and I believe that's 8 what Allen was actually concerned with, if I 9 remember correctly. And let's say that 10 someone omits reliance. You can have deemed 11 findings that are at the extreme ends of the 12 no-evidence, insufficient evidence spectrum, 13 and I don't think we need to include those or 14 exclude those from JNOV motions, is I think 15 what Rusty is saying.

16 MR. McMains: Well --

17 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Mike
18 Hatchell, and then I'll get to you, Rusty.

19 MR. HATCHELL: I'm also very 20 concerned, and perhaps the draftsmen can help 21 me, about the interrelationship between this 22 rule and a motion for a directed verdict,
23 because I understand that this clause says
24 that in some limited instances the substantive 25 controlling law can be changed by the failure

1 to object to the charge. Well, what if I move 2 for a directed verdict under the controlling 3 law? Does this change mean, then, that my 4 complaint on appeal of the failure to grant my 5 directed verdict is tested by one body of law
6 and my motion for judgment as a matter of law 7 is tested by a different body of law?

8 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Rusty, you
9 had your hand up. Any further comment?

10 MR. McMANS: Well, again,
11 because we have changed the Charge Rules in 12 part, I'm not sure if this concept of 13 sandbagging, if you will, is as sufficiently 14 preserved as you may think. I don't have a 15 problem with the "unless" clause properly
16 framed, because I think that if you allow a 17 charge to go to the jury that has an error in 18 it and therefore obviously is not consistent 19 with controlling law in the abstract, you 20 should not be able to complain that the other 21 side has either waived something or that -- I 22 mean, you're going to get some advantage as a 23 result of the jury not having been asked the 24 right question or having been asked an 25 affirmatively wrong question, a la perhaps a

1           misplacement of the burden of proof. There 2           are all kinds of things that you can see that 3           are defects.

4           It seems to me that if you consented to 5           those defects by not having brought that out 6           in the charge, that's really what Allen is 7           getting at. The actual facts of Allen were in 8           fact a fraud defense with regards to an 9           insurance policy, and what happened 10          specifically in Allen is that the issue was 11          submitted in terms of did the applicant who 12          did the insurance, applied for the insurance 13          policy, did he know or should he have known 14          the statements were fault; whereas, the 15          statute very clearly says you have to prove 16          intent; you have to know that what you said 17          was false, so it's the wrong standard, but 18          nobody noticed.

19          The trial court NOV'd it because it was 20          the wrong standard. The court of appeals 21          affirms. The Supreme Court says no, you can't 22          do that. You do not have the power to NOV it, 23          because that's the standard that was submitted 24          and nobody complained about it, and so that's 25          the standard that's going to apply to this

1 case whether or not it happens to be 2 inconsistent with controlling law.

3 But it clearly does deal with an 4 affirmative misstatement of the law and not 5 with just something that happens to be left 6 out or something that might be inconsistent in 7 the overall, like in duty concepts, with the 8 application of controlling law.

9 I mean, I fear that if we don't put the 10 limitation about an affirmative misstatement, 11 that we then expand Allen to encompass things 12 it wasn't intended to do. But I also think if 13 we leave it out, that we also create the harm
14 that we encourage sandbagging. And basically 15 people will just take the position of, well, 16 that's not the controlling law but I didn't 17 have to do anything to tell them about that.
18 Maybe that kind of moots the entire relevance 19 of the charge and what lawyers are supposed to 20 be doing about the charge.

21 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Let's take an 22 easy next step from Allen. The charge submits 23 the wrong measure of damages. The parties are 24 bound by that because nobody objects, clearly 25 a misstatement of the law, an affirmative

1 misstatement of the law, but they are bound to 2 it. I think we all agree that's the way it 3 looks like it ought to be.

4 Let's take a different situation. The 5 trial court submits negligent infliction, the 6 only cause of action, jury verdict, damages
7 are awarded to the plaintiff. No one objected 8 to the submission of the negligent
9 infliction. The trial judge back in chambers
10 says, "By God, I'm going to submit it. I 11 don't care what you say." And so everybody 12 relaxes. "I'm going to take care of that on 13 NOV." But there was no objection at the 14 charge stage that submitting negligent
15 infliction law in a question was an improper 16 cause of action in this state. Now, is the 17 plaintiff entitled to a judgment on the 18 verdict who can't complain at NOV because the 19 charge affirmatively misstated Texas law by 20 not submitting the question at all? I don't 21 think we intend for it to go that far.

22 PROFESSOR DORSANEO: I do.

23 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Bill says he 24 does. Richard.

25 MR. ORSINGER: I'd like to

1 phrase the proposition a little bit 2 differently, and I think that I would like 3 Rusty to listen closely to this because I want 4 to find out what his reaction is.

5 If we use the word affirmatively in the 6 "unless" clause, then, for example, if you 7 submit a negligence case with a definition of 8 "producing cause," we have affirmatively 9 misstated the law because negligence would 10 require proximate cause. So if it's going to 11 the jury with "producing cause" in there and I 12 fail to object that they use "producing" 13 instead of "proximate," then I'm bound with 14 the law that it's "producing," even though 15 it's wrong, and I can't come in on an NOV and 16 get the whole thing set aside.

17 Now, if I have a jury charge that asks
18 for negligence and damages and completely 19 omits causation, not even mentioned at all,
20 then I have a jury charge that let's the jury 21 get to a recovery without a finding of 22 proximate cause, but it's an omission rather 23 than an affirmative misstatement of the law.
24 If it's an omission, then theoretically this 25 rule would permit me to come in on NOV and

1 say, if it says that I can only NOV on an 2 affirmative misstatement, then if it's 3 completely omitted, I can make no complaint as 4 as a matter of law, but if it's -- because 5 without objecting --

6 PROFESSOR DORSANEO: No, that's 7 not right.

8 MR. ORSINGER: What did I say
9 wrong?

10 PROFESSOR DORSANEO: If you're 11 leaving it out of the charge, then nothing is 12 waived except the right to a jury trial, so 13 all of your complaints about everything else 14 are still available to challenge a finding, 15 even a deemed finding.

16 In this system, if something is left out, 17 there are three ways to handle it. If it's 18 the plaintiff's something, let's say proximate
19 cause, you can follow the traditional approach 20 that was followed before Rule 279 was adopted, 21 and that is rule against the plaintiff because 22 the plaintiff didn't tag third base.

23 You could go the completely opposite way 24 and say if the defendant didn't raise the 25 matter about proximate cause being in the 1 case, then the defendant waives that legal 2 requirement and loses. Okay? And I think 3 that would be the result if you didn't have an 4 "unless" clause.

5 Or you could have a deemed finding 6 approach that waives the right to a jury trial 7 and substitutes a finding in support of the 8 judgment if it's consistent with factually 9 sufficient evidence and no one raised the 10 matter by objection or request.

11 Aside from Mike Hatchell's point about 12 the, quote, directed verdict motion which 13 might require some more thinking, I'm 14 completely positive that if it doesn't say 15 "misstates" or "affirmatively misstates" or 16 "expressly misstates," then we do create 17 conflict; otherwise, it just fits.

18 CHAIRMAN SOULES: But you're 19 saying that this compels the complaint that a 20 judge is submitting a cause of action not 21 recognized under Texas law; that that requires 22 that that be made at the charge stage or it's 23 waived?

24 PROFESSOR DORSANEO: Or I would 25 allow somebody to make it by a, quote, motion

1 for directed verdict at the close of the 2 evidence, and I don't think this is --

3 MR. ORSINGER: Or by special
4 exception.

5 PROFESSOR DORSANEO: Or by 6 special exception.

7 MR. ORSINGER: If you make a
8 special exception and it's overruled, you're 9 going to have that on appeal regardless of 10 what happens during your jury trial, I think.
11 And if you move for a directed verdict on the 12 grounds that they haven't proven a cause of 13 action when the plaintiff rests and the judge 14 overrules that, you know, I think you can 15 argue that the denial of the directed verdict 16 was error even if you don't object to the 17 charge that was submitted.

18 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Justice
19 Duncan.

20 HON. SARAH DUNCAN: I have to 21 say, as long as Allen is now on the table, I 22 have always been confused by Allen. I do not 23 to this day know the parameters of Allen. It 24 gets argued by a lot of people in this state 25 for a lot of things that I don't think just

1 make common sense, and maybe it's a good time
2 to talk about if Allen should be the law. If 3 there is no evidence to support an essential 4 element of a cause of action, why are we 5 shifting it to a malpractice case against the 6 lawyer rather than saying, "You don't have a 7 cause of action"?

8 It's always been -- and maybe it's just 9 my problem, but you know, waiver just to me
10 ought to take you only so far, and I'm not 11 sure it should take you all the way to 12 establishing a cause of action that you don't 13 have.

14 CHAIRMAN SOULES: I agree with 15 that.

16 MR. ORSINGER: But the problem
17 with that is that we gut our rules on 18 preserving error in the jury charge if we take 19 the "unless" clause out.

20 HON. SARAH DUNCAN: We're not 21 talking about -- what we're talking about is 22 measuring the evidence against the charge.
23 We're not gutting charge preservation to say 24 that the sufficiency of the evidence stands on 25 its own two feet, to me.

1                   CHAIRMAN SOULES:  Go ahead,
2                   Justice Guittard.

3                   HON. C. A. GUITTARD:  We don't 4                   have to write in the rules every time under 5                   what circumstances something is waived.

6                   JUSTICE CORNELIUS:  Exactly.

7                   HON. C. A. GUITTARD:  And so 8                   why should we do it here?  If Allen says that 9                   that is a waiver and this language leaves out 10                  the "unless" clause, would it still be a 11                  waiver?  I don't know why the "unless" clause 12                  is really necessary.

13                  PROFESSOR DORSANEO:  It was put 14                  in there because the Committee voted to put it 15                  in there the last time we went by this path.
16                  I don't think it needs to be in there either 17                  really.

18                  MR. ORSINGER:  Well, this is 19                  new language in the rules.  How does anyone 20                  know that this rule isn't made to overrule 21                  Allen?

22                  CHAIRMAN SOULES:  But this 23                  seems broader, I think, than -- I don't think 24                  you have to preserve an appellate complaint 25                  that the plaintiff doesn't have a cause of

1 action under negligent infliction anytime
2 prior to getting an NOV. If you raise it at 3 JNOV and he doesn't have a cause of action
4 under Texas law, you don't prove it or explain 5 it, you just wait until it's over and it's 6 over. And you may want to do that, because if 7 you go to plead a special exception, I may 8 plead a cause of action that he does have 9 one. Strategy. Okay? But he never does.

10 It's his job to do his job, not your job 11 to do his job. If he doesn't have a cause of 12 action plead under Texas law, when it's all 13 over, it's over. And you can say, "There's no 14 cause of action under Texas law. You can 15 either agree with me or not agree with me,
16 Judge, but when I get to the appellate court, 17 they're going to agree with me."

18 Now, this is broad enough to include that 19 circumstance.

20 MR. ORSINGER: It sure is.

21 CHAIRMAN SOULES: And that is 22 too broad, it seems to me.

23 PROFESSOR DORSANEO: No.

24 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Bill says no.

25 MR. KELTNER: Let's take it

1 out.

2 CHAIRMAN SOULES: And I respect
3 Bill's opinion an awful lot more than I 4 respect my own sometimes, so I want to make 5 that clear. Rusty.

6 MR. McMAINS: I think that, you
7 know, the judge's point is frankly not correct 8 under our -- under the new Charge Rules. That 9 is to say, I don't think that the waiver that 10 was effective in Allen would be recognized in 11 light of this -- if you took the "unless"
12 clause out, and given our new Charge Rules, 13 because the old Charge Rules had a specific 14 provision, and Allen is based on that specific 15 provision that says no objection -- I mean, an 16 objection as to form or substance not made is 17 waived, and that's the theses behind Allen.
18 That's what it's about. It's an objection to 19 form or substance. Now, so that's what -- and 20 that's how they got off into the issue of 21 saying, you know, okay, we have to apply that 22 part of the Charge Rule here.

23 Now, in our current Charge Rules we don't 24 have that language in there anymore. Our 25 current Charge Rules don't have the no

1 objections as to form. We have some stuff
2 about objections, but we don't ever have 3 anything that talks specifically about waiver
4 if it's not made at the time in terms of form
5 or substance, and so we lose all precedential 6 basis for the holding in Allen if you take the 7 "unless" clause totally out. And I am of the 8 opinion that by and large what you do not want 9 to do is you do not want to be in a position 10 to where somebody can concoct something, put 11 it in the charge, and even at the invite of 12 the other side say, "Oh, yeah, that's the 13 issue," and then afterwards sandbag you and 14 say, "Oh, no, that's the wrong question. That 15 issue is absolutely and totally immaterial."
16 I mean, that's the kind of sandbagging 17 basically that they said they didn't want to 18 go on, and that's what Allen was about.

19 Now, but there is a difference between -- 20 in spite of the hypothetical that was 21 attempted to be drawn, there is a difference 22 between an omission and an affirmative
23 misstatement of the law, and our rules treat
24 omissions differently. And we've always gone 25 the middle ground in this issue of does the

1 plaintiff win, does the defendant win -- I
2 mean, does the defendant lose if there's no 3 objection, or does the judge get to make the 4 decision when you're dealing with an 5 omission. The judge gets to make the decision 6 if you waive your right to trial by jury, and 7 that's what the charge is for, is to submit 8 the issues to the jury. You don't have a 9 right to a jury trial anymore.

10 But I don't think, and perhaps maybe I 11 disagree with Bill's interpretation, if that's 12 your -- if your interpretation is that no
13 cause of action in the negligent infliction 14 argument is waived, I don't read the rule with 15 the "unless" in terms of an affirmatively
16 misstatement as waiving that, because I think 17 that you can make -- if your point is that 18 there is no controlling law ever that was 19 going to be recognized, and there is actually 20 appellate law to the contrary, I think you can 21 make that for the first time after verdict, 22 regardless of whether the "unless" clause is 23 in there or not.

24 But in the producing clause example that 25 he gave, that one is a different deal. Wrong

1 causation standard. You've acceded to it.
2 You don't have the right to take the position 3 that there's no evidence afterwards or to make 4 a challenge that he's waived something because 5 there's no proximate cause, because you didn't 6 make any kind of complaint, didn't object, and 7 that's the causation standard that was 8 submitted. I don't have a problem with how 9 that's inequitable, or how all that will be 10 that much more difficult to apply.

11 MR. HUNT: Mr. Chairman, can we 12 vote on this?

13 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Okay. It's 14 been moved and I think seconded that we 15 substitute "affirmatively misstates" for those 16 words, the words "fails to express" in 17 301(b)(2) and 301(c)(2). Those in favor show 18 by hands.

19 PROFESSOR ALBRIGHT: In favor 20 of?

21 CHAIRMAN SOULES: 16.

22 Those opposed. Okay. No opposition, so 23 it's unanimous.

24 MR. KELTNER: Luke, I thought 25 there also was a motion to remove the entire

1 "unless" clause.

2 CHAIRMAN SOULES: It's been so
3 moved. Is there a second?

4 PROFESSOR ALBRIGHT: Second.

5 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Moved and 6 second. Those in favor show by hands. Seven.

7 Those opposed. Nine.

8 Nine to seven it will remain.

9 MR. HUNT: Mr. Chairman, we now
10 move to page 11. This is the rewrite of 11 Rule 327. It now is a part of Rule 302. It's 12 302(d). This is exactly what we approved last 13 time. The box here on page 11 is only for the 14 purpose of being certain that it meets the 15 Evidence Subcommittee's blessings.

16 Buddy Low and I corresponded and talked 17 on this. It may be that the Evidence
18 Subcommittee's version of 606(b) may come out 19 a little differently, but I have it there only 20 for the purpose of calling it to your 21 attention, and the members of the Evidence
22 Subcommittee may respond if they so choose.

23 CHAIRMAN SOULES: It squares
24 with 606(b) as presently in the book, right, 25 in the rules?

1 MR. HUNT: No.

2 CHAIRMAN SOULES: It does not?

3 MR. HUNT: Because we added the 4 phrasing about the juror was qualified to 5 serve.

6 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Oh, yes.
7 Okay.

8 MR. HUNT: And of course, this 9 revision has been made to slightly clarify the 10 language.

11 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Okay.

12 MR. HUNT: I guess what Bill
13 Dorsaneo did early on in working on this was 14 to do some LawProse-type editing which changed 15 the grammar a little bit, clarified it a 16 little bit. It doesn't quite meet 606(b) now, 17 but the purpose of the exchange with Buddy Low
18 was to try to get our versions together. I 19 don't know if we've accomplished that or not 20 because he's not here.

21 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Well, we 22 voted to do this, and he's going to have to 23 carry that forward in the Rules of Evidence.

24 Okay. Any opposition, then, to the 25 rewrite of -- let's see, what is this, Don?

1 302 --

2 MR. HUNT: Yes.

3 CHAIRMAN SOULES: -- (d)(2),
4 correct?

5 MR. HUNT: Correct.

6 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Any 7 opposition? It's unanimously approved.

8 MR. HUNT: Now we move to 9 page 19. This is part of Rule 304. You will 10 recall that we revisited Rule 304(e). 304(e) 11 is what is now 306(a), that rule that deals 12 with the dates, how you count. Then we had 13 this paragraph (8) as shown on page 19 of your 14 text. Alternative 1 was approved previously.
15 We tinkered with the language just slightly 16 last time, and that was the way it was left 17 until Judge Guittard pointed out that it was 18 in conflict with TRAP 47(c) which had been 19 sent to the Supreme Court.

20 And for that reason Justice Guittard and 21 I felt that it should be called to your 22 attention, and the Committee permitted it, to 23 revisit the decision of whether we really 24 wanted to deal with prematurely filed motions 25 for new trial and motions to modify as we had

1           previously voted, so that's the concern and 2           the choice for this Committee.

3                     Judge Guittard.

4                             HON. C. A. GUITTARD: I want to 5           add this comment that it doesn't seem right, 6           regardless of the conflict, and I think it 7           does conflict, but regardless of the conflict, 8           if a party files a premature motion for new 9           trial or files a motion for new trial that's 10          premature because the judge hasn't signed the 11          judgment. He doesn't know just when the judge 12          is going to sign the judgment, and if it 13          happens that the judge has already signed the 14          judgment, then that's -- we have one result.

15                    If the judge hasn't already signed the 16           judgment and does sign the judgment after the 17           motion is filed, then the motion is overruled 18           already and it messes up the appellate 19           timetable, and counsel may not know about 20           that.

21                    So this is an occasion for a trap that is 22           contrary to our user-friendly approach, and a 23           motion for new trial, whether premature or 24           not, ought to have the same effect and take 25           effect as if filed on the date that the

1 judgment is signed.

2 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Well, why are 3 these two rules inconsistent? They look to me 4 like they could both be applied.

5 HON. SARAH DUNCAN: The 6 conflict is between Appellate Rule 41(c) and 7 and Alternative 1. A motion for new trial 8 filed prior to signing the judgment under 9 Alternative 1 doesn't give you an extended 10 timetable.

11 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Right.

12 HON. SARAH DUNCAN: Unlike 13 current law and unlike 41(c), Alternative 2, 14 if you file your motion for new trial or 15 motion to modify before the judgment is 16 signed, you get the extended timetable, 17 period. And that's current law, and that's 18 what's in 41(c).

19 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Richard
20 Orsinger.

21 MR. ORSINGER: I'm not sure
22 that this is part of the conflict. It seems 23 to me that the conflict is the idea that the 24 motion for new trial is overruled by operation 25 of law at the time the judgment is signed.

1 But the second part of that is equally
2 important to me, and that is that if you file
3 a motion for new trial prematurely that it
4 doesn't give you your extended plenary power
5 and your extended appellate timetable.

6 The reason we voted to do that was 7 because sometimes people will file motions
8 before trial that are not -- motions before 9 judgment that are not called motion for new 10 trial but they have a paragraph in there that 11 requests some relief like a remittitur or 12 something, you know, between verdict and the 13 signing of judgment. And rather than having 14 to sort through everything that was filed and 15 see if someone unconsciously filed what's the 16 equivalent of a motion for new trial or maybe 17 they've filed it intentionally without 18 labeling it as such, we just came down with a 19 simple rule that if you file it before the 20 judgment is signed, it doesn't affect plenary 21 power; and if you file it after the judgment 22 is signed, it does affect plenary power. To 23 me, that's a separate question from whether 24 it's overruled, a premature motion is 25 overruled on the date the judgment is signed,

1 or overruled on the 75th day after the 2 judgment was signed.

3 And I'd like to keep that distinction
4 between no plenary power extension if it's 5 prematurely filed. You must file a motion 6 after the judgment is signed to get an 7 extended appellate timetable or extended 8 plenary power.

9 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Well, we 10 voted on that and passed it.

11 MR. ORSINGER: But this goes 12 against that.

13 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Well, I know,
14 and it would be taking that out. And I don't 15 see that that's inconsistent with 41(c). It 16 may be inconsistent with the way 41(c) is now
17 applied, but that's not what 41(c) says here
18 as written. Just look at the words. "No 19 motion for new trial or motion to modify 20 judgment shall be held ineffective."

21 MR. McMAINS: Alternative 2 is 22 not 41(c).

23 MR. HUNT: Correct.

24 MR. McMAINS: That's his 25 revision to conform with 41(c).

1 HON. SARAH DUNCAN: Right.

2 MR. McMAINS: What does 41(c)
3 actually say? I'm not sure that I understand 4 what rule that is anyway.

5 CHAIRMAN SOULES: 41(c) in the 6 new proposals that we sent them?

7 HON. C. A. GUITTARD: I don't 8 think we changed 41(c), did we?

9 MR. McMAINS: I don't know.

10 MR. ORSINGER: 41(c) reads
11 awfully like Alternative 2, only Alternative 2 12 is limited to new trials and motions to modify 13 judgment; whereas 41(c) talks about 14 limitation, notice of limitation of appeal and 15 some other things.

16 MR. McMAINS: It says what?

17 MR. ORSINGER: Well, 41(c), the 18 first sentence of 41(c) is "No appeal or bond 19 or affidavit in lieu thereof, notice of appeal 20 or notice of limitation of appeal shall be 21 held ineffective because prematurely filed."
22 It doesn't even mention --

23 HON. SARAH DUNCAN: Wait,
24 there's another one.

25 MR. ORSINGER: Okay. Then the

1 next sentence -- no, that doesn't talk about 2 it either.

3 HON. SARAH DUNCAN: There's 4 another rule that deals with --

5 CHAIRMAN SOULES: The new 6 41(c) --

7 HON. SARAH DUNCAN: Rule 58(a)
8 says, "Pleadings relating to an appeal need 9 not be considered ineffective because of 10 prematurity if a subsequent appealable order
11 has been signed to which the premature 12 proceeding may properly be applied."

13 My understanding is the way that's been 14 interpreted is if you file a motion for new 15 trial prior to the date the judgment is 16 signed, that motion for new trial relates to 17 that judgment and it's not overruled on the 18 date the judgment is signed, it's overruled -- 19 it's deemed to have been filed on the date of 20 but subsequent to the signing of the judgment, 21 and it is deemed overruled within just the 22 usual 75-day rule.

23 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Just a
24 moment, I've got 41(c) here and I'm trying to 25 compare them. Subsequent to what?

1 HON. SARAH DUNCAN: It's 58.

2 MR. ORSINGER: The comment is 3 incorrect. It ought to say TRAP 58.

4 CHAIRMAN SOULES: They're 5 basically the same. Do you want to see it?

6 Well, what's written here basically 7 tracks 41(c) that we sent to the Supreme 8 Court.

9 HON. SARAH DUNCAN: That's 10 true.

11 MR. ORSINGER: The problem with 12 this, Luke, is 41(c) talks about perfecting 13 the appeal, and this rule talks about motions 14 for new trial.

15 CHAIRMAN SOULES: No.

16 MR. ORSINGER: I agree. I 17 mean, 41(c) deals with --

18 CHAIRMAN SOULES: 41(c) deals
19 with the notice of appeal and the notice of 20 the limitation of appeal. That's all it deals 21 with.

22 PROFESSOR DORSANEO: And 58
23 deals with the rest.

24 HON. SARAH DUNCAN: Everything
25 else.

1                   CHAIRMAN SOULES:   Okay.  Let's 2                   look at Rule 58 then.

3                   HON. C. A. GUITTARD:  And they 4                   may deal with different subjects, but they 5                   ought to be parallel to avoid confusion.

6                   CHAIRMAN SOULES:  58 is not 7                   changed from the existing rule.

8                   HON. C. A. GUITTARD:  Right.

9                   CHAIRMAN SOULES:  No part of 58
10                  is changed from the existing rule.  No change 11                  recommended to 58.

12                  MR. McMAINS:  Luke.

13                  CHAIRMAN SOULES:  Rusty.

14                  MR. McMAINS:  Rule 58 really 15                  talks about that there's not anything about 16                  prematurity that's going to affect the 17                  appellate court's jurisdiction.  But the 18                  effect of this rule is that it may make 19                  something late.  I mean, what we voted on was 20                  basically to say you need to know that if you 21                  file something, and it was as Richard said, we 22                  voted on it, and we had a rather lengthy 23                  debate like for an entire meeting, that we 24                  treated all motions alike.  Motions for NOV, 25                  which the courts have been in conflict as to

1 whether or not an NOV was a motion to modify 2 and whether it was overruled by operation of 3 law, whether it needed an order and so on and 4 so on, we rolled them all in and said, okay, 5 you've got 30 days, and you can amend it as 6 many times as you want to. You can file as 7 many of them as you want to 30 days after the 8 judgment is signed.

9           Whatever you filed beforehand doesn't 10 affect the preservation of error, and if you 11 want to prematurely perfect your appeal, if 12 you want to file a cross-bond before the 13 judgment, that's all 58 is talking about, and 14 that's no problem. Then in that case you 15 don't have any problems anyway about when the 16 plenary power is extended. But all we said is 17 if you want to extend the court's plenary 18 power, the motions to do that start from the 19 judgment.

20                   CHAIRMAN SOULES: Well, that's 21 right.

22                   MR. McMAINS: And that's what 23 we did. And I don't think it conflicts with 24 58 at all. What 58 simply says is if you file 25 a motion for new trial before the judgment and

1 a bond before the judgment and a judgment is 2 subsequently signed, then 30 days later you 3 have an appealable order. All that changed is 4 the time.

5 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Alternative 1
6 was passed by this Committee by about a 7 two-to-one vote. Alternative 2 takes that 8 away, and we're not going to go back and redo 9 that. We did it. I understand that there are 10 people on the Appellate Subcommittee that 11 disagree with it, but it's over. It's already 12 gone away, and so --

13 MR. HUNT: Mr. Chairman, let's 14 take that off the table, because the purpose
15 was not to revisit the vote of the Committee 16 but merely to point out what we might have 17 done. And if in our collective wisdom here we 18 believe that what we previously have done does 19 not conflict with anything we have sent to the 20 Supreme Court on what this Committee has 21 acted, then there's no need to consider it 22 further.

23 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Okay. It's 24 off the table, Alternative 1.

25 MR. HUNT: Now, we come to

1 Rule 305, and if you would, do something
2 that's a little difficult to do: Don't think 3 about elephants. Do not think about 4 paragraph (a). Paragraph (a) to the three 5 alternatives to Rule 305 is a definition that 6 is my language, my brain child. Justice 7 Duncan thought we probably needed one, but 8 that's not what the Committee asked us to do, 9 so ignore that for a moment and deal with what 10 Judge Guittard and I have attempted to do in 11 conformity with the Committee vote; that is, 12 give you three alternatives. Alternative 1, 13 ignoring (a), deals with the present rule with 14 minor changes. That's one choice you have.

15 Then Alternative 2, again ignoring (a), 16 deals with the present rule, except it's just 17 more comprehensive. It's a little more wordy 18 about what happens after expiration.

19 And Alternative 3 is the rule that gives 20 you the 105 days automatically.

21 Now, those are the three choices there.
22 Do you want to take 329(b) as it currently 23 exists and express it in (b) and (c) and 24 Alternative 1 and leave it in that general
25 language, or do you want more expansive

1 language in Alternative 2, or do you want
2 expansive language plus a 105-day
3 clarification as in Alternative 3?

4 Mr. Chairman, I would like to have this 5 body address those choices, and then we'll 6 look and see if we need a definition.

7 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Okay.
8 Discussion. Bill Dorsaneo.

9 PROFESSOR DORSANEO: Well,
10 I think that I would probably prefer 11 Alternative 1 unless I could be convinced that 12 the other alternatives add something more than 13 a different way of expressing the same
14 matter. I don't believe, as I said before, 15 that our 329(b) rule is in trouble with 16 respect to the particular paragraphs that we 17 have here and would like to work from it, but 18 that's probably more a bias than it is 19 anything else.

20 HON. C. A. GUITTARD: What
21 about the problem of whether an order 22 overruling a motion for new trial limits the 23 duration of the plenary power?

24 PROFESSOR DORSANEO: With 25 possibly that one exception, Judge.

1                   HON. C. A. GUITTARD: That's a 2 separate question that we need to determine.

3                   PROFESSOR DORSANEO: I guess 4 what I'm saying is I think I know what the 5 problems are with the current rule, and I 6 realize that that's one, you know, the 7 additional 30 days only when there's an 8 overruled motion, and I think that may have 9 been an oversight when we drafted the thing
10 originally. I don't remember so many years
11 ago now at this point.

12                  But I'm pretty comfortable with 329(b) in 13 most respects from a plenary power standpoint, 14 and my preference would be to work from the 15 existing rule.

16                  CHAIRMAN SOULES: Richard
17 Orsinger.

18                  MR. ORSINGER: Well, this is 19 again one of these issues that we debated for 20 hours, and I'm not sure how 3 is different 21 from 2, but I think 2 is more or less what we 22 voted on before, but there are some things in 23 2 that I think are worthy.

24                  For example, a motion to reinstate after 25 a dismissal for want of prosecution is

1 expressly made a basis for extended plenary
2 power and an extended appellate timetable
3 under version 2, but it's not under version 1, 4 and I don't know whether it is or isn't right 5 now under 329(b) as currently written.

6 PROFESSOR DORSANEO: Well,
7 that's because the motion to reinstate rule 8 makes it -- covers that, 165a.

9 MR. ORSINGER: Well, has that 10 rule gone away, or is that a rule that is 11 still with us?

12 PROFESSOR DORSANEO: It's still 13 with us. It's in your subcommittee, and we 14 haven't dispatched it or even mentioned it at 15 all at this point.

16 MR. ORSINGER: I'm nervous
17 because we've got a list here of everything 18 that extend plenary power and we've just 19 omitted something that's covered in another 20 rule that might extend plenary power in that 21 rule.

22 PROFESSOR DORSANEO: It does.
23 165 is exactly parallel to 329(b).

24 MR. ORSINGER: Okay. I think 25 there's wisdom in listing all of these things

1 in the rule that governs plenary power.

2 I also want to say, remember the 3 mathematics we did to figure out on the 4 findings of fact and conclusions of law
5 timetable, and we figured out if the judge can 6 overrule that motion for new trial real 7 quickly, the judge is going to run out of 8 plenary power before the final deadline for 9 filing findings of fact and conclusions of 10 law. And there was some concern that a court 11 that has lost plenary power perhaps is unable 12 to then file the findings, and we decided I 13 think after all of this blabber that we 14 weren't going to let the court do a hurry-up 15 signing of a motion overruling him, of an 16 order overruling a motion for new trial and 17 cut off plenary power early.

18 And there may be other things here that 19 we debated and voted on, but Bill's proposal 20 is to throw out all of that debate basically 21 and going with our current rule, and I'm in 22 favor of going with our last vote, which I 23 believe to be closer to 2, or maybe 2 was our 24 vote at the last Committee.

25 HON. C. A. GUITTARD: It may

1 be, but the idea -- but 2 does not include the 2 idea that an order overruling a motion for new 3 trial limits plenary power. Alternative 3 4 does that.

5 MR. ORSINGER: Well, then I
6 like 3 better than 2 clearly.

7 PROFESSOR DORSANEO: Well,
8 frankly I could go with any of the three. For 9 purposes of debate we could get through the 10 first one probably in relatively short order, 11 and then we at least have one, and if we 12 collapsed into disagreement after that, we 13 would not do anything more except, you know, 14 be left with what we finished.

15 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Justice
16 Duncan.

17 HON. SARAH DUNCAN: I may have 18 said this once before. I understand that Bill 19 and other people in the room have no problem
20 understanding 329(b). It helps a lot if you
21 wrote it. We have -- I've noticed an awful 22 lot of trial courts that do not have Bill's 23 complete understanding of their plenary
24 power. I seem to have seen a lot of cases 25 where people are signing and unsigning each

1 other's orders and acting outside of plenary
2 power and refusing that because they think 3 they don't have it. And I'm still in favor of 4 making it somewhat more clear as to when a 5 court has power and what it has power to do.

6 HON. C. A. GUITTARD: I also 7 want to call attention to the recent opinion
8 of the Supreme Court in the L.M. Healthcare 9 case, which says in effect that an order 10 overruling a motion for new trial does not 11 limit the plenary power, and so Alternative 3 12 is consistent with that decision and makes 13 that explicit.

14 MR. McMANS: Alternative 3
15 does what, Judge? I'm sorry, I didn't 16 understand you.

17 HON. C. A. GUITTARD: It's 18 consistent with the decision in -- let's see, 19 what's that case...

20 CHAIRMAN SOULES: It's L.M.
21 Healthcare vs. Childs.

22 MR. HUNT: March 24 opinion.

23 HON. C. A. GUITTARD: Right.
24 And it adopts the approach that apparently is 25 adopted in that recent opinion.

1 MR. ORSINGER: It also has the 2 additional benefit that plenary power doesn't 3 vary.

4 HON. C. A. GUITTARD: That's
5 right. You've got 105 days of plenary power
6 regardless of what happens meanwhile, if there 7 is a motion for new trial or one of those 8 other motions.

9 MR. ORSINGER: But if nobody 10 files it, then you can get execution at the 11 end of 30 days.

12 HON. C. A. GUITTARD: Right.

13 MR. ORSINGER: So there's only 14 two expirations, either 30 days or 105 days, 15 and you don't have to count or watch anything.

16 HON. SARAH DUNCAN: Well, you
17 do have to count.

18 MR. ORSINGER: You do have to 19 count.

20 HON. C. A. GUITTARD: You have 21 to count to 105.

22 HON. SARAH DUNCAN: Right, but 23 no further.

24 PROFESSOR DORSANEO: Well, why
25 don't we go with the third alternative?

1 That's really what you want to do, instead of 2 just asking us what we would like to do.

3 HON. C. A. GUITTARD: That's
4 right. I move the third alternative.

5 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Well, there's 6 an interesting thing in L.M. Healthcare that 7 says, "Only timely filed motions extend the 8 trial court's plenary jurisdiction. A party
9 must file a motion to modify judgment and a 10 motion for new trial within 30 days."

11 HON. C. A. GUITTARD: Either.

12 CHAIRMAN SOULES: No. It says
13 "and."

14 HON. C. A. GUITTARD: Yeah, it
15 says "and," but it means "either."

16 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Well, that's 17 not what it says. That is not what it says, 18 and it might be changed.

19 MR. ORSINGER: If rehearing is 20 still pending, we're okay. We can still 21 change that.

22 CHAIRMAN SOULES: "And." You
23 can file both --

24 HON. SARAH DUNCAN: Actually 25 there's a rule of grammatical construction

1 that "and" can mean either "and" or "or"
2 depending upon context.

3 HON. C. A. GUITTARD: That's
4 right.

5 PROFESSOR DORSANEO: And vice 6 versa.

7 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Anyway, the 8 motion to modify is on a track within the same 9 period of time but independent of a motion for 10 new trial, and that's basically what L.M.
11 Healthcare vs. Childs upholds, so long as you 12 file both.

13 PROFESSOR DORSANEO: I move the 14 adoption of Alternative 3.

15 MR. HUNT: Second.

16 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Moved and
17 seconded for Alternative 3.

18 HON. DAVID PEEPLES: Luke.

19 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Justice
20 Peeples.

21 HON. DAVID PEEPLES: Didn't we 22 have a pretty good discussion last meeting 23 about whether this was broken enough to 24 require radical fixing and whether we were 25 just creating more problems down the road by

1 this massive rewrite? Or was that just --

2 MR. ORSINGER: That was this 3 rule. I remember your comment.

4 HON. DAVID PEEPLES: I thought
5 a lot of people --

6 MR. ORSINGER: Not enough to 7 win the vote, though. A lot of people, but 8 not a majority.

9 MR. HUNT: Luke, let me speak
10 to that. Judge Peeples is correct. But look 11 at Alternative 3 and what Judge Guittard has 12 done there. He hasn't done any harm to 13 current 329(b), and you don't do harm because 14 you break things into paragraphs and refer to 15 other rules. That's all he's done.

16 What you have when you look at the 17 language under Alternative 1, when you look at 18 the (b) and the (c), they are very similar 19 except that it's broken out into one, two, 20 threes rather than just listed in a series.

21 And this is the same kind of thing that 22 we're getting from LawProse, and I suspect
23 that if we don't do it now, LawProse will do 24 it for us later and we'll have to revisit this 25 same issue.

1 HON. SARAH DUNCAN: And as 2 Elaine says, this one is free.

3 HON. DAVID PEEPLES: I may be 4 thinking about the final judgment discussion
5 we had last time.

6 MR. ORSINGER: It could have 7 been.

8 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Richard,
9 we've got a motion for Alternative 3. Is 10 there a second?

11 MR. HUNT: Second.

12 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Don seconds.
13 Richard, discussion?

14 MR. ORSINGER: There's one
15 little bit that we're out of balance on here.

16 The request for findings of fact and 17 conclusions of law after a nonjury trial gives 18 you the extended appellate timetable but it 19 doesn't give you the extended plenary power.
20 There is some logic in going ahead and saying 21 that a request for findings of fact, which is 22 an indication that you're going to appeal the 23 case, should also extend plenary power as well 24 as giving you the appellate timetable.
25 Otherwise it's kind of a trap, because some

1 lawyers think that the request for findings,
2 since it gives you the extended appellate 3 timetable, also gives you extended plenary 4 power and it doesn't, and probably it should.

5 CHAIRMAN SOULES: It doesn't 6 presently.

7 MR. ORSINGER: No, it doesn't 8 presently. And they really ought to be 9 parallel. If it's going to affect the 10 appellate timetable and extend it, then why 11 shouldn't it also extend the trial court's 12 plenary power? I just suggest that we stick 13 that in here.

14 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Are you
15 saying that we vote that requests for findings 16 of fact and conclusions of law prior to 17 judgment extends the appellate timetable?

18 MR. ORSINGER: No. The rules
19 on findings of fact and conclusions of law say 20 that a timely request extends the appellate 21 timetable. It doesn't say that it extends 22 plenary power. This is the plenary power
23 rule. This issue hasn't been raised before,
24 and all I'm saying is that if that's the only 25 thing that we have that gives you an extended

1           appellate timetable that doesn't also give you 2           extended plenary power, then why don't we just 3           put it in here, and then everything is 4           consistent.

5                           CHAIRMAN SOULES:   Does anyone
6           want to talk about that?   Don Hunt.

7                           MR. HUNT:   Mr. Chairman, in 8           (c)(4), and we visited this last time, that 9           anytime there's a timely request that there's 10          still power after expiration to do it, and I 11          think that's the answer to it.   And it does 12          deal with it in a rational way to recognize 13          that sometimes, because of the way advocates 14          request and trial courts react, that you may 15          be on a little different time frame.   But if 16          the request is timely, then the trial court 17          has plenary power even after expiration to go 18          ahead and sign them and get them in the 19          transcript.

20                           CHAIRMAN SOULES:   If the 21          request for findings of fact and conclusions 22          of law, whether initial or supplemental, is 23          timely and the court doesn't act, this gives 24          the court power to act within its plenary time 25          periods, and that's what --

1 HON. C. A. GUITTARD: Beyond
2 that, Mr. Chairman.

3 MR. ORSINGER: No, outside the 4 plenary power. But that's a different issue.
5 Don is addressing a different issue.

6 I'm saying that there really are four 7 things that give us an extended appellate 8 timetable, a motion for new trial, a motion to 9 modify, a motion to reinstate, and a request 10 for findings of fact. Only three of those 11 also extend plenary power, and I don't see any 12 reason why, since your request for findings is 13 your true signal to the appellate court that 14 you're going to appeal -- to the trial court 15 that you're going to appeal a nonjury trial, 16 and you don't even need a motion for new 17 trial, because you don't have to preserve your 18 factual sufficiency points.

19 What's the logic in saying that a request 20 for findings has the same effect on the 21 appellate timetable as a motion for new trial, 22 a motion to modify or a motion to reinstate, 23 but it doesn't have the same effect on the 24 trial court's plenary power?

25 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Okay.

1 Richard, you're looking at paragraph --

2 MR. ORSINGER: (b)(2).

3 CHAIRMAN SOULES: -- (b)(2).

4 MR. ORSINGER: It's

5 Alternative 3(b)(2).

6 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Alternative
7 3(b)(2). Okay. Specifically let's talk about 8 that point then, Elaine.

9 PROFESSOR CARLSON: I think it
10 just depends upon whether you view the 11 findings of fact as purely an appellate step 12 or if you really view it as something on which 13 the court might change its judgment.

14 I think what Richard is saying, and I
15 agree, is that most young lawyers would think 16 a request for findings of fact is a hope one 17 day that the judge will see the error of its 18 wisdom and will change the judgment. And my 19 experience with younger lawyers is it is a 20 trap, even though more sophisticated appellate 21 practitioners would say, no, it shouldn't 22 really be seen as a plenary power extending 23 instrument. I would say to remove the trap 24 maybe it should be.

25 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Judge

1 Guittard.

2 HON. C. A. GUITTARD: The logic
3 of it is, and this is not necessarily to 4 oppose Richard's position, the logic of it is,
5 that filing findings and conclusions is not a 6 matter that has to be within the plenary power 7 because it doesn't actually change the 8 judgment; it only explains. And our current 9 practice is to permit that to be done when it 10 is done timely, and the appellate court can 11 just send the case back to the trial court and 12 tell them to make the findings and conclusions 13 even though they didn't do it within the time.

14 So I guess the logic, then, is, since the 15 filing of findings needn't be done within the 16 plenary power period if a timely request has 17 been made, then it's not necessary for the 18 filing of findings to extend the plenary 19 power.

20 MR. McMAINS: Well, I recognize 21 that most people's experience with nonjury
22 proceedings is that the judge, once he renders 23 his judgment, really doesn't care about what 24 the findings are. But on the theory that 25 possibly if he discovered that he was going to

1 have to make a finding that somebody had 2 requested that might alter his judgment, the 3 idea that he doesn't have the power to do that 4 doesn't make a whole lot of sense to me,
5 especially if he's following the timetables
6 and he's systematically getting ready, you
7 know, to do it.

8 CHAIRMAN SOULES: To be 9 appealed?

10 MR. McMAINS: Yeah. It's going 11 to be appealed, and he looks at it and he 12 says, "Ah, I have made an error." I mean, he 13 could have made an error in a calculation
14 even, but it still may be not something 15 subject to nunc pro tunc.

16 If you're going to make findings, and 17 obviously, one of the grounds you can appeal 18 on in nonjury cases without a record even is 19 that the judgment is not justified by the 20 findings, if he render findings and you say 21 that's not good enough, why shouldn't he be 22 able to change the judgment?

23 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Richard, what 24 I want -- and then I'll get to Mike, but I
25 want you to give me the words you want

1 inserted and where you want them inserted so
2 that we're really very specific and talking 3 about something very specific.

4 MR. ORSINGER: In Rule 305,
5 Alternative 3, paragraph (b)(2), take the "or" 6 out in the second line where it says "the 7 judgment, or motion to reinstate," just take 8 the "or" out there, "motion to reinstate a 9 judgment after dismissal for want of 10 presecution, or a request for findings of 11 fact." Well, better say -- Elaine says 12 "proper," and we better say that, because if 13 you're not entitled to one, it doesn't have 14 any effect.

15 PROFESSOR CARLSON: Proper.

16 PROFESSOR DORSANEO: Why don't 17 we use the same parallel language we used in 18 the Appellate Rules with all these things?

19 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Which says
20 what?

21 PROFESSOR DORSANEO: I don't 22 have them.

23 MR. ORSINGER: About extending 24 the appellate timetable?

25 PROFESSOR DORSANEO: Uh-huh.

1                   CHAIRMAN SOULES:  Mike, let's 2                   hear from you while they're looking for that.

3                   MR. HATCHELL:  Quickly, I just 4                   wanted to add to what Rusty was saying and 5                   have everybody remember that a request for 6                   findings and conclusions also triggers the 7                   process for requesting additional findings and 8                   objecting to the findings made.  And if a 9                   trial judge either sustains an objection or 10                  makes an additional finding that would require 11                  an amendment to the judgment, under our 12                  present rules he can't do that.  And so 13                  Richard's suggestion in my judgment is very 14                  well taken.

15                  PROFESSOR DORSANEO:  In the 16                  Appellate Rules I think the place where the 17                  request for findings is located is actually 18                  before a motion to reinstate pursuant to Civil 19                  Procedure Rule .165a.

20                  CHAIRMAN SOULES:  So it says
21                  new trial, modify, findings, and then 22                  reinstate?

23                  PROFESSOR DORSANEO:  Yeah.

24                  CHAIRMAN SOULES:  Okay.  So put 25                  it there.

1 HON. SARAH DUNCAN: 41(a)(1)
2 has it at the very end. Sorry.

3 PROFESSOR DORSANEO: So it's 4 not consistent.

5 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Okay. Well,
6 what words do we use?

7 HON. SARAH DUNCAN: Proper. A
8 proper request for findings of fact.

9 MR. ORSINGER: Do we want to 10 mention conclusions of law?

11 PROFESSOR DORSANEO: No.

12 CHAIRMAN SOULES: "Or a proper 13 request for findings of fact." Okay. That 14 will go to the end.

15 Those in favor show by hands. 16.

16 Those opposed.

17 PROFESSOR DORSANEO: And then
18 take out (c)(4).

19 CHAIRMAN SOULES: That's 20 unanimous.

21 And Bill, that's for after the plenary 22 power is gone.

23 MR. ORSINGER: And the court
24 may want to supplement later.

25 CHAIRMAN SOULES: All right.

1 Those in favor now with that change, those in 2 favor of Alternative 3 of Rule 305,
3 Alternative 3 with only that change but 4 otherwise in its entirety as written by the 5 subcommittee, show by hands. 18.

6 Those opposed.

7 So that's unanimous.

8 MR. HUNT: Now, Mr. Chairman,
9 I'd like to vote on (a), Definition. I'd like 10 to break that into two votes. Number one, do 11 we need a definition; and then if we vote that 12 we need a definition --

13 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Well, let me
14 first get a clarification. Haven't we already 15 voted on that? I think we just voted on the 16 entire 305. That was my question, and 17 everybody voted.

18 MR. HUNT: Good.

19 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Okay. So
20 that's behind us.

21 Is there anything else we need to take up
22 before lunch? If you have anything really 23 controversial, let's get it now.

24 Let's take about 30 minutes. If anybody 25 is not done with their lunch, we can finish
